RICH CRUSADER AGAINST GAMBLING DEAD IN POND

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 17.—The body of E. Francis Crowell, wealthy business man and leader in the crusade to drive gambling out of the town of North Providence, was found in a pond at Woodville at noon today.

The police said the death was a mystery. It was intimated that gamblers or others might have plotted Crowell's death out of revenge for his activities against them. The police authorities said they could not tell whether Crowell was a victim of fould play or a suicide.

The police, however, recalled that several years ago because of his crusade, Crowell received a "black hand" letter.

This letter read:

> WARNING.
> Do not hold any more meetings in opposition to the gambling house in Marieville.
> If you don't heed this warning be prepared to suffer.
> (Signed)
> Marieville Black Hand Society.

Crowell's auto was found at the edge of the Woodville pond. Woodville is a part of the town of North Providence and is not far from Marieville, which is another section of the same town.

Crowell's home is at No. 576 Fruit Hill avenue, North Providence. He was fifty-five years of age and is survived by a family.

Chief of Police George H. Willis of the town at once began an investigation into the mystery. Attention was paid to the theory that Crowell might have been the victim of men who might have been out to "get" him.

Crowell was one of the best known business men of North Providence. He had important business connections with houses in this city. He was not only prominent i nthe work to reform his town, but was active in the efforts to drive the gamblers out o fNorth Providence. At one time the town was the centre of operations of the gamblers.

'TOODLES' CASE TO JURY TODAY

Miss Elizabeth M. Ryan ("Toodles") wept and then burst into loud sobbing in the court room today before Judge Fessenden and the jury during the closing arguments in her $50,000 breach of promise suit against Harry K. Mansfield of the Ferncroft Inn.

Miss Ryan was overcome by emotion when Mansfield's counsel, in his summing up, told of the so-called "bedroom scene" in Mansfield's Raleigh street apartments. At first she cried softly, then her sobs became audible and could be heard throughout the court room.

At length, unable to restrain herself, she rose and hurried into an ante-room. She was followed by Miss Irene Griffin, the nurse who attended her during an illness at Ferncroft and who was a witness last week.

SOBS HEARD IN COURT.

Miss Ryan's sobs could be heard until the door to the ante-room was closed. A glass of water was given her by a court officer.

The courtroom was crowded, and among the spectators were a number of women. The corridor was thronged.

The case is expected to go to the jury late today. Attorney Michael L. Sullivan, counsel for Mansfield, opened at 9:30, and will be followed by Daniel H. Coakley, counsel for Miss Ryan.

Sullivan, after telling how Mansfield kissed the plaintiff at the inn on her first visit there, said:

"She kissed others at Ferncroft. Two of them have sent depositions. All of them have denied it.

"I don't know that I blame them. A man's wife would feel hurt if she knew or heard that her husband had kissed Miss Ryan, even though it was a joke. I don't blame the men

Bank Clerk's Hand Hurt in Elevator

Firemen of Ladder 17 and mechanics were summoned today to the Summer street branch of the oCmmonwealth Trust Company to liberate Edward G. Wells of Ipswich, a junior clerk, whose left hand was caught between the elevator and the second floor. They chopped and pried for ten minutes before freeing the young man, who displayed wonderful nerve. His left hand was badly crushed. He was taken to the Relief Hospital.

Piute Indians Beat Posse in Skirmish

CORTEZ, Col., Feb. 17.—Defeated in a skirmish with the renegade Piute Indians who have fortified themselves in the mountains of southwestern Utah, a posse sent out to force the Redmen back on their reservation telegraphed here for help today. Reinforcements will be sent at once. The Indians are led by Old Polk, who has been arrested four times for murder, and his son, Tse-Na-Gat, who is wanted for murdering a Mexican sheepman.

To Carry Cotton Under U. S. Flag

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 17.—The steamships Savannah and Memphis have been chartered for another voyage across the Atlantic, when they will fly the American flag and carry cargoes of cotton. The steamers Columbus and Macon will probably be chartered also. The destinations are not announced, but it is believed that the Savannah will go either to Trieste or Bremen.

Allies Plan Trade War on Germany

PARIS, Feb. 17.—The allies are preparing to embark upon a trade war against Germany. One hundred and fifty French and British exporters have chartered the steamer Argonaut, upon which they will sail to South America to advertise French and British goods. They will endeavor to oust German trade from Chile, Argentine, Brazil and other countries and establish French and British commerce in its stead.

Bomb Explodes in New York Tenement

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Another tenement house bomb outrage took place early today when an explosion unroofed the building at No. 323 East Forty-eighth street, badly injuring one tenant and causing twenty families to flee panic-stricken into the street.

Once German, Oil Ship Flies U. S. Flag

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—The Standard Oil tank steamer Moreni is on her way from here today for Lisbon and Port Said, flying the American flag and with an American crew of thirty-five sailors. The vessel was formerly the German steamer Meppen. Her registry was changed after the European war began.

Military College Burned; 35 Escape

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Feb. 17.—The main buildings and dormitories of the Chamberlain Military Institute at Randolph were destroyed by fire early today. Thirty-five cadets asleep in the dormitories escaped, but many lost their personal effects. The loss was $75,000.

TEUTONS CAPTURE 50,000 RUSSIANS

By FREDERICK WERNER.

Staff Correspondent Boston American.

BERLIN, Feb. 17.—By wireless—The tremendous success of the Germans over the Russians in East Prussia was won under the eyes of Emperor William. More than 50,000 prisoners were taken by the Germans, who also captured more than fifty cannon and sixty machine guns.

Only a remnant of the Russian army, which consisted of more than 200,000 men, succeeded in escaping across the frontier into Russia.

A vast quantity of ammunition and other war supplies was abandoned by the Czar's troops in their flight.

These facts are set forth in an official statement issued at the War Office today.

GERMANS CAPTURE KOVNO.

A dispatch from Koenigsberg to the Lokal Anzeiger states that German troops have reached the great Russian fortress of Kovno and have thoroughly invested it.

Kovno is a fortress of the first class, fifty miles from the Russo-German frontier at the junction of the Niemen and Vilia Rivers. It has a population of nearly 90,000.

The conflict lasted for nine days in the Mazurian Lake region and terminated in a decisive triumph for the Germans. The victory was later celebrated in the town of Lyck, where Emperor William personally congratulated his soldiers, who sang "Deutschland Ueber Alles" in their exultation.

The War Office statement which is based upon an official report from the German General Staff follows:

"In a battle lasting nine days in the Masurian Lakes district the Russian Tenth Army, consisting of eleven infantry divisions and several cavalry divisions, was not only driven out of its strongly entrenched positions east of the Lake Plateau, but was also driven over the frontier, being utterly defeated at almost every point. (A division of infantry consists of 18,000 men.)

"The Russian infantry in this battle therefore numbered 198,000 men and with the cavalry division the Tenth Army was well over 200,000."

Only remnants of the Russian army managed to escape to the woods east of Suwalki and Augustowo (in Russia), where they are being pursued.

The enemy's losses were very high.

BRITISH TRAFFIC WITH CONTINENT ORDERED STOPPED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Cable dispatches received this afternoon show that English and French steamship traffic between the British Isles and the continent was suspended today, that a British collier and a French steamer have been torpedoed and sunk by German submarines and that a Norwegian steamer, a neutral, was attacked by one of the submarines, but was saved by the interference of French torpedo boats.

The attack upon the Norwegian vessel is the first one upon a neutral ship so far reported.

These are the first moves in the starvation war between England and Germany which was scheduled to begin tomorrow night at midnight, or at 7 o'clock tomorrow night, by American Eastern time.

The British collier which was sunk was the 3,300-ton Dulwich. It was torpedoed Monday night in the English Channel at Etretat. Cables today from Havre, France, where Captain Hunter of the Dulwich arrived on the destroyer Arquebus, quoted Captain Hunter as saying that the German craft had fired its torpedo without warning. The torpedo struck the waterline and the Dulwich sank within twenty minutes.

Captain Hunter ordered his men into the boats immediately and they pulled away from the doomed vessel. On their way toward the French coast the crew saw the submarine three times.

Two members of the crew of the Dulwich are missing. Twenty-two were picked up by a French destroyer and brought to Havre, while seven others who succeeded in lowering a small boat before the Dulwich sank rowed to Fecamp. The German submarine which sank the Dulwich was plainly seen by the collier's crew as it sped away after launching a torpedo that struck the Dulwich on her starboard side.

SUBMARINE DESTROYS FRENCH VESSEL.

Cables from Paris say that official announcement was made at ministry of marine this afternoon that a German submarine sank the French steamer Ville de Lille yesterday off Harfleur. The ship was torpedoed while on her way from Cherbourg to Dunkirk. The commander of the submarine gave the crew of the steamer ten minutes in which to leave the vessel.

The German submarine was the U16. The Ville de Lille attempted to escape when she was hailed by the submarine, but was overtaken and compelled to stop.

A statement issued at the ministry of marine this afternoon states that after sinking the French steamer the German submarine attacked a Norwegian steamer, but that French torpedo boats came up from Cherbourg while the submarine was pursuing the neutral vessel and compelled her to dive beneath the surface.

The Oscar II, the Scandinavian-America liner which left New York for Christiana, February 4, with 600 passengers and a big American cargo, has been picked up by a British cruiser and taken into Kirkwall, according to a cable received by the company's officials in New York. The line officials believe that the steamer is being held until her cargo can be examined. The wireless apparatus of the Oscar II was dismantled by the cruiser. The Oscar II was overdue and it was feared she had been destroyed by a mine.

Dispatches from Falmouth, England, where the American steamer Wilhelmina has been subject of diplomatic exchanges, say that it was learned today that British marines, who were placed on board the Wilhelmina last night, were stationed there because reports had reached

England and Germany Ready to Begin Final Grapple Over Food Tomorrow Night.

GREAT PRECAUTIONS TAKEN.

British officials are exercising the utmost precautions to do nothing which would cause irritation in the United States and the officer in command of the men on the American ship explained that his force did not constitute a "prize crew" but only a "guard."

There are nearly fifty ships, some flying the United States flag, with immense quantities of American property and many American citizens on other ships, due to reach the war zone established by Germany within the next few days.

This fact caused keen anxiety here today. The tension was relieved somewhat, however, by cables from Berlin announcing that Ambassador Gerard had received from the German government the complete reply to the American note inquiring as to what precautions Germany would take or neutral shipping in its starvation war against England.

CONTENTS WITHHELD.

Ambassador Gerard transmitted this note by cable to Washington, but its contents have not yet been made public. The Berlin dispatches, however, said that the German reply was worded in a spirit of friendliness and hope was expressed by the Berlin Foreign Office that it would remove any doubt as to Germany's position that might have existed hitherto.

At the White House President Wilson let it be known that he had the utmost confidence that the situation can be cleared up without embroiling the United States.

There was a deeply rooted belief expressed at the White House this afternoon that a German submarine will never blow up an American merchantman, despite the warning recently issued by the German Admiralty. This warning is now interpreted to have been put out for its effect in Great Britain: to send up insurance rates on shipping and to make foreign trade precarious.

The German war zone declaration becomes effective tomorrow. In the meantime Great Britain, it is anticipated, will meet in a friendly spirit the American request concerning the use of the Stars and Stripes on British ships.

There is a feeling of confidence in Washington that the various protests pouring in on Germany from neutrals will lead to a modification of the German war zone order. Officials believe that every German submarine captain will be given instructions to avoid making "the mistake" to which the German Admiralty referred in its warning.

The President today promised to make a statement shortly of all the facts relating to the general food supply of the United States. He wrote a letter to Mayor John Purroy Mitchel of New York in reply to the latter's proposal to put an embargo on the export o fwheat.

The letter read:

THANKS MITCHELL.

"I thank you for letting me see the report attached. The matter is one to which the administration has given a most careful and thoughtful attention. The agricultural department is in possession of all the facts. About these facts some erroneous impressions are obtained and it is our purpose in the immediate future to remove these misunderstandings by a full and clear statement of all the facts. They will, I think, reassure the country."

ENGLAND IS READY.

Cable dispatches from London today said that Great Britain has completed her naval plans for meeting the anticipated raid by German submarines on all shipping, merchant and otherwise, in the war zone.

It was expected today that King George and the Privy Council would declare a blockade of the German coast as a retaliatory plan to starve Germany. Prohibitions regarding foodstuffs are looked for in formal proclamation by the Crown and Council.

The German government and other German agencies, on the other hand, today renewed their warning that they intend to set no limit in destroying shipping in the war zone in their determined intention to starve England and that, as it will be practically impossible to distinguish neutral shipping, the latter should avoid the war zone.

Germany made it clearly understood that the food situation in the Fatherland has reached a crisis and that this move against England has become a matter of life and death.

One of the first moves of England in her policy of starving Germany, as related today in London cables, has been to place a prize crew of three officers and sixteen men aboard the American steamer Wilhelmina. This is the vessel which sailed from New York under the Stars and Stripes on January 22, before these starvation war zones were established.

The Wilhelmina was bound for Hamburg with foodstuffs, which, under guarantee of Ambassador von Bernstorff, were for Germany's civil population alone. The Wilhelmina put in unexpectedly at Falmouth, England, and immediately drove the increasing complications to what in American talk is called a "showdown."

The action of England in placing a prize crew on the Wilhelmina, takes actual possession of the vessel, which Ambassador von Bernstorff pointed out to the State Department yesterday was the first test of just how far Great Britain would go in interfering with neutral trade with Gerfany.

The Wilhelmina case presents serious complications for the United States because, while the American government has protested to Germany that it will hold Germany responsible for any American ships that may be destroyed in Germany's raid on British commerce, at the same time its efforts are likely to be nullified if it permits Great Britain to seize non-contraband cargoes sailing under the American flag for Germany.

CAUGHT BETWEEN TWO FIRES.

In this situation, therefore, the United States is caught between two fires.

President Wilson today showed more alarm over the crisis between Germany and the United States than over any other situation since he became President. He believes the situation is critical.

Consideration of the several phases of the situation, as they exist today, has been so serious that army and navy officials have even considered the personnel of the two fighting wings of the service.

The Kaiser is reported to have been informed by his advisers that the United States will not fight. It is said Ambassador Gerard will be instructed to impress upon the German Emperor the fact that this nation is prepared to take any steps necessary to protect American commerce. Washington is awaiting the outcome of the Gerard conference with great anxiety.

Germany, despite the American warning that grave consequences must follow the torpedoing of any American ship, repeats her threat of a relentless war on shipping in British waters and makes no promise to respect neutral ships.

Condensed to a nutshell, the situation today is:

1. The whole situation regarding Great Britain and Germany has been taken up by President Wilson, first with Secretary Bryan, and later at a meeting of the Cabinet.

2. Great Britain has refused to compromise in her determination to stop all food ships destined for German ports. As far as the State Department was advised today, Great Britain has shown no signs of swerving from her purpose of starving the Germans.

3. Germany has refused to alter her announced purpose of terrorizing all vessels found in the vicinity of British ports. She has advised this government she will carry out her plan, beginning Friday, unless the United States induces Great Britain to change her starvation program.

4. The United States is standing on the President's note informing Germany she must not carry out her threats and if they are carried out there may be trouble. The United States has so far declined to follow Germany's suggestion that her good offices be used to induce Great Britain to change her plans.

MAY PROTEST MINE SOWING.

No answer will be made to Count Bernstorff's note until a reply has been received from Berlin to the American note sent through Ambassador Gerard. Both communications will be dealt with in another note from the United States, it is understood, taking up further the question of the war zones and especially the proposal of Germany to strew mines in the new war areas.

Hitherto the United States has declared its inability to make protests against the strewing of mines in the North Sea, in contravention of the international law, because the American government was unable to learn which belligerent was responsible for the act. The announcement of Germany's intention to strew mines, especially if they are floating and not anchored, is likely to reopen the entire question.

Germany is facing starvation. This is conceded by Admiral Behncke of the Marine Department at Berlin in a statement made to Lieutenant-Commander Gherardi, naval attache of the American Embassy at Berlin and transmitted by wireless to Sayville, L. I.

The United States is prepared today to ask Great Britain to allow foodstuffs to enter Germany, but her request will be made in the interest of American merchants, and she will not be drawn into the controversy as Germany's spokesman.

Well informed officials today appeared satisfied Great Britain will decline to allow the American vessels to proceed on their courses to German ports. Great Britain is expected to reply, as in the case of the Wilhelmina, that she will gladly purchase all American foodstuffs and thereby not interfere with the commerce of this country, at least insofar as profits are concerned.

GERMANY MISINFORMED.

It is feared in official circles this reply will throw Germany into frenzy and that her Admiralty will proceed to carry out the program President Wilson has announced cannot be tolerated by this government.

Information has reached Washington from Germany to the effect that the Kaiser is banking upon two elements in the present situation. First, his advisers have informed him that the United States will not go to war even if war would appear to be the only manner of supporting the propositions laid down in the President's note.

They are reported to have misunderstood the President's Mexican policy and confused his determination to give the Mexicans every opportunity to set up a free government with a supposed unwillingness to accept war.

His counselors are reported to have advised him that the United States would be tremendously embarrassed in a German war because of the millions of Germans who would flock to the support of the fatherland by using any methods at hand.

Both of these suggestions are keenly resented in circles close to the White House. Persons in the confidence of the President have stated freely during the last few hours that Germany is totally misinformed and that the destruction of a single American vessel will end the present relations between the two countries.

Officials at the German embassy here declare they do not believe the Kaiser will give way in his determination, regardless of the American warning.

Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg's official German note, made public today through the German consul at Rotterdam, may be quoted to show in how much danger is any one of the thirty-three American merchant vessels now in or approaching the sea war zone established by Germany. The note follows:

"In most cases German submarines will be unable to distinguish between neutral and British vessels when encountered in the war zone. All merchantmen, therefore, run the risk of destruction. In order to avoid losses it is urgently necessary for neutral ships to keep away from the war zone.

"Germany can no longer regard the British merchant fleet as unarmed or entitled to warning before attack, because merchantmen are equipped with guns and a large reward has been offered to the first merchant vessel which sinks a German submarine.

"Germany will pursue the war in the manner announced until Great Britain acknowledges the rules of naval warfare as fixed by the Paris and London declarations, or until the neutral Powers force this acknowledgement from England."

AMERICANS MUST NOT CRY MURDER IF GERMANS SINK SHIPS, SAYS HARDEN

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 17.—In the Berlin Zukunft Maximilian Harden publishes a long contemptuous article about the United States, the conclusion of which is that the United States will profit immensely through the war and cares nothing about anything except money making. He declares that Germany does not care in the least about American opinion regarding the cause of the war, and it is not worth while to utter a syllable in Germany's defence.

"Seriously we beg the Americans not to cry 'murder,' he says, "if a few American ships are injured in the war about to be made by German submarines against England.

"Great Britain desires to shut off our food from America; we desire to shut off England's import of ammunition and raw materials from America.

"American ships do not try to reach our coasts with their cargoes. Therefore we say 'stay away from British coasts also. You were warned in good time.'

"What is now to happen is compelled by the pitiless necessity of war. It must be. Let no cry of pain from America nor any menace from there sound in Germany's ear."

KAISER SEES BIG RUSSIAN DEFEAT

The number of prisoners taken by the German troops has not yet been ascertained definitely, but it was certainly over 50,000. We captured more than fifty cannon and sixty machine guns. A vast quantity of war material was also taken, but no figures are yet available.

Emperor William was present at the decisive conflict in the centre of the fighting line.

ADMIT RETREAT.

A dispatch from Petrograd says that the Russian troops have effected orderly withdrawals from all points on their front where their positions were menaced by the terrific offensive of the Germans and their Austrian allies.

The withdrawal from East Prussia and southern Bukowina, the report says, was caused by the appearance of great opposing armies and not to any decisive battles resulting in Russian defeats, the War Office claims.

Russian military experts assert that Russia's superior resources permit her to adopt a policy of attrition, which will result in the ultimate collapse of the Germanic offensive because of the heavy losses that will necessarily fall upon armies continually attacking.

The German claims that General von Hindenberg has won a great victory in East Prussia are denied in Petrograd. It is admitted that the Germans are again advancing upon Ossowiec, but the falling back of the Russian army is declared to have been due to the appearance of German forces numerically superior to the Russians, and not to any defeat suffered by them.

Billions of Germs

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

"It must be my kidneys."

You can fight off the billions of germs which you swallow. But, how about the uric acid, which your own system creates? Can you conquer that, too? Yes—if your kidneys work right. But if they don't, the backache, dizziness, or discolored urine will soon warn you of grave peril. Kidney weakness leads to dropsy, gravel or Bright's disease, if neglected. You must live more simply, take care of yourself, and use Doan's Kidney Pills to strengthen your kidneys.

A South Boston Case:

James H. DeForest, retired painter and grainer, 610 E. 4th St., S. Boston, says: "My back ached almost constantly and I was laid up for weeks. I was sore and sharp pains often caught me across my loins. My kidneys were weak. I doctored, but nothing did me any good. Doan's Kidney Pills soon relieved the pains in my back and finally cured me of the trouble."

HAVERTY WINNER IN CAMBRIDGE

Complete returns from the Cambridge municipal primaries of yesterday were not in until breakfast time today on account of delay in counting the new form of ballot adopted since the abolition of party enrollment.

This was the first test of the new primary law in this State, by which the primary tickets of all parties are printed on one ballot.

In Cambridge the ballots were counted for the Citizens' ticket and then for the Republican ticket. The delay was increased by the large number o fcandidates. There were forty candidates for Democratic nominations to eleven places on the Board of Aldermen and seventeen candidates for eleven Republican nominations. The Common Council candidates were legion.

MAN YWOMEN VOTE.

In addition, there were the women's ballots in the school committee contest. More than 2,000 women voted on the Democratic side alone for school board candidate.

On the Democratic side Mayor Timothy W. Good was unopposed for renomination.

In the Democratic contest for assessor's nomination Assessor William M. Hogan, seeking renomination, was defeated by John C. Haverty by 952 votes. Haverty polled 3,821 and Hogan 2,869. Haverty is a singer and has contributed songs to minstrel shows, concerts and other entertainments in Cambridge for several years, acquiring many friends and showing talent for good fellowship. Haverty literally sung his way into the nomination, his friends say.

President John W. Bradley of the school committee secured the Democratic renomination for school committee-at-large by defeating Charles J. McCue, 4,720 to 4,28.

BARRETT BEATS GADSBY.

In the District 1 Democratic contest for school committee James T. Barrett defeated Committeeman John F. Gadsby, 1,341 to 985.

The eleven winners for Democratic nominations to the Board of Aldermen were: Dunphy, 3,069; Kennedy, 2,633; Nelligan, 2,380; Corcoran, 2,331; Gaffney, 2,220; Reed, 2,195; McCarthy, 2,155; Kelleher, 1,952; Bridey, 1,907; Delehanty, 1,907; James H. Murphy ,1,881.

The feature of the multiple fight for Democratic councilmanic nominations was that President Frank J. Lehan of the Common Council barely secured renomination for second place by 13 votes.

ROCKWOOD A WINNER.

On the Citizens' ticket for mayoralty nomination Wendell D. Rockwood won with 926. Ex-President Charles H. Lake of the Board of Aldermen received 620 and Dr. George E. Sherman 733.

The assessors' contest resulted: Harry Brooks Adams, 1,598; George H. Mahady, 358; James E. Ambrose, Jr., 182.

For Republican school committee-at-large Philip R. Ambdon was unopposed.

The eleven Republican winners for aldermanic nominations were: Hathaway, 1,868; Gardner, 1,768; Carruth, 1,524; Stephens ,1,479; Wardwell, 1,367; Wentworth, 1,362; Apted, 1,347; Cheek, 1,267; Munson, 1,214; Jennings, 1,134; Lons, 1,092.

Rich Widow Lyle a Bride

Weds Barrister Samuels

Mrs. Alexander W. Samuels, the former Mrs. Julia Gertrude Lyle, widow of Millionaire John S. Lyle.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Mrs. Julia Gertrude Lyle, "the lady of the chimes," who at thirty married John S. Lyle when he was ninety-two, was left a widow two years later and inherited most of his fortune, estimated at almost $30,000,000, is again a bride. She was married at the Hotel Plaza to Alexander Winton Samuels, a barrister of Birmingham, England. Mr. Samuels is about thirty-two years old, a widower with three children, and is said to be wealthy.

The bride has been seriously ill for weeks, following an operation for appendicitis. Her physicians ordered her to Palm Beach for her convalescence. Mr. Samuels has been an ardent suitor for many months and urged the widow to accept him at once, so that he could accompany and care for her.

Mrs. Lyle is a devout Catholic and when she finally decided to accept Mr. Samuels the marriage was arranged hurriedly, so that it could take place before Lent.

Mgr. Lavelle of St. Patrick's Cathedral, a friend of the bride, was summoned to the Plaza, and the ceremony was performed by him in the presence of a few friends. Afterward a wedding breakfast was served, and later Mr. and Mrs. Samuels started for Palm Beach. It is believed they will make their future home in this country.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuels met more than a year ago at the home of their mutual friend, Mrs. S. Stanwood Menken, of No. 34 West Fifty-second street. It was said to be a case of love at first sight and Mr. Samuels pressed his suit ardently. Mrs. Menken yesterday acted as matron of honor. The bride, who wore a beautiful gown of gray chiffon, trimmed with silver, was attended by her sister, Miss Margaret Hannan, of Tenafly. Others who witnessed the ceremony were Mr. Menken, Louis Wylie, Felix Doubleday, Fred Goddard, who acted as best man; James Marwick and Master Winton Samuels, the seven-year-old son of the bridegroom, who arrived here last week on the Orduna, in charge of the captain.

The bride was formerly a trained nurse in the Presbyterian Hospital. She was then Julia Gertrude Hannan. She left the hospital to nurse Lyle's sister-in-law, following the death of his wife. After she had been in the beautiful home of the millionaire at Tenafly several months they were married by Justice of the Peace Stewart, in Yonkers, in September, 1910. Despite the difference in their ages they lived happily together until July, 1912, when the aged millionaire died.

DISPUTE ON CHIMES.

Since her husband's death Mrs. Lyle has continued to occupy the famous Lyle home at Tenafly. One of the features of the old mansion is a fifty-foot tower, in which are a set of chimes, of which the young widow was very fond. They had been hung in memory of her husband and every fifteen minutes would ring out a sacred tune. It was very pretty at first, but after a time the monotony of it palled on the neighbors. In spite of their objections, the widow refused to silence them, so the neighbors went to court about it. The court finally made a ruling that the chimes should be rung at certain hours and a limited number of times each day.

Wilson Refuses to See Colored Women

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—In a letter to Representative Roberts, Secretary Tumulty expresses regret that President Wilson will be unable to receive a delegation from the Northeastern Federation of Colored Women's Clubs, which was anxious to call at the White House to talk over several subjects with the President.

Toodles' Kiss in Curley's Venue Plan

"I have asked Corporation Counsel Sullivan to frame up a bill which would prevent the shifting of law cases into Suffolk County for trial on a change of venue process and the saddling of the expense on Boston," declares Mayor Curley. "This would mean if some one kissed Toodles up in Essex County the case would not be tried in Suffolk County."

Plan Memorial Park to Howes

The Julia Ward Howe Memorial Association plans to raise funds to pay for land in the Strandway, South Boston, that is to be a memorial park to Julia Ward Howe and the late Dr. Howe.

When the park is paid for and suitable memorials erected to Mrs. Howe and Dr. Howe it will be turned over to the city of Boston.

Old Time Cold Cure—Drink Tea

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Thee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.—Advertisement.

REPORT GERMANY BACKED HORN IN BIG BRIDGE DYNAMITING PLOT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The importance which the administration attaches to the case of Werner Horn, the German reservist who tried to blow up the international bridge across the St. Croix River at Vanceboro, Me., is indicated by the disclosure that Assistant Attorney-General Warren was sent to [illegible] to make an investigation.

Intimations have reached Administration officials from British sources that the actual responsibility for Horn's attempt upon the international bridge lies not with the reckless individual but with the German government.

According to these British intimations, the destruction of the St. Croix bridge was but one step in a concerted [illegible] alleged to have been evolved under the direction of German agents for cutting off means of communication between the United States and Canada. The Canadian government, it is said, has increased the guards at the important bridges within the last two months.

These intimations are regarded here as explaining the unusual interest which the officials of the Department of State and Justice appear to have taken in this case.

TWO SEPARATE INQUIRIES.

Mr. Warren conducted his investigation separately from that of Bruce Bielaski, chief of the secret service agents of the Department of Justice, who has been in charge of the investigation undertaken into the responsibility for Horn's attempt immediately after the German's arrest.

The Assistant Attorney-General reported verbally to the counsellor of the State Department, Mr. Lansing, and yesterday had another conference with that official in company with Secret Service Agent Bielaski. He refused to make any statement regarding the attitude to be taken by the government toward Great Britain's demand for the extradition of Horn. It was said that some disclosure of the policy to be followed in the case may be expected in a short time.

Horn is held at Machias, Me., on the technical charge of breaking a window in Vanceboro, which was shattered by the explosion with which he sought to blow up the St. Croix bridge. He was committed by the local authorities on February [illegible] for a term of thirty days. The answer of this government's answer to the British demand for his extradition, it is said, will be delayed therefore until the expiration of this period.

ARTERY FOR TROOP CAMP.

Particular stress is laid on the [illegible] Horn into the real significance of the comparatively unimportant St. Croix railway bridge. This bridge is an important artery of supply for the Canadian concentration camp at St. John, N. B. The bridge is on the line from St. John to [illegible].

It is understood that Horn, through his counsel, has [illegible] for his extradition [illegible] various proceedings. It is by no means certain, however, that this government will look with favor on the demand for his extradition for some time to come.

Other things may be found for retaining him in this country by indicting him on charges of violations of [illegible] or national statutes, which may be involved in his attempt to blow up the bridge or the manner in which he secured the explosive used. Hearings probably will be held some time in March upon the extradition demand.

UNITED STATES ASKED BY CANADA TO GUARD INTERNATIONAL LINE

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—The United States has been asked by the Dominion government to place guards on the American side of the international boundary at highway and rail approaches to Canada, it was learned today. The request was made through the British Ambassador at Washington.

The attempt upon the Canadian Pacific bridge at Vanceboro by Werner Horn and confidential reports of the feeling of certain Germans and Austrians in the United States have led to the request.

It is believed here that the American government soon will establish at many points on the international boundary the guards which Canada has asked for.

The Canadian government has had guards on duty on the boundary for some time at many points, but the Dominion feels there would be greater security if the guards were to be duplicated on the southern side of the boundary.

MISS JEANNETTE WRIGHT, WHO TESTIFIED IN HERRICK CASE

WAITT PAID $16.40 FOR PHONE CALL

Fifty-four long distance telephone talks between Mrs. Herrick, of Schenectady, N. Y., and Mr. Albert F. Waitt, at Newton, the longest of which, a forty-minute conversation, cost the latter $16.40, played a prominent part in the testimony offered yesterday in the Herrick-Waitt $75,000 alienation suit now on trial before Judge White and a Middlesex jury at East Cambridge.

With today's resumption of the trial it is expected that Mr. Waitt, the millionaire defendant, will take the stand in his own defence. There is now every indication that the trial, the defence of which is already well advanced, will conclude either late today or early tomorrow morning.

Additional testimony of kisses, caresses and expensive gifts bestowed upon Mrs. Herrick, wife of Ralph M. Herrick, plaintiff in the case, featured yesterday's session, the latter part of which was occupied by the defence. Additional testimony as to Mrs. Herrick's sojourn at Buzzard's Bay as a guest at Mr. Waitt's Summer home, and of her three-days' trip to New York city as a guest on Mr. Waitt's motorboat was also introduced during the day.

Another feature of the session was the address delivered to the jury by Attorney Chester W. Ford, counsel for Mr. Waitt, at the opening of the defence. In this address Attorney Ford stated that his client would prove that in befriending Mrs. Herrick he was actuated solely by his innate sympathy. It was the attorney's assertion that Mr. Waitt, having once formed Mrs. Herrick's acquaintance, favored her with gifts of money, candy, flowers, dresses and other things as an "act of charity to a woman left destitute by an ingrate husband."

Among other things the attorney averred that his client would admit having entertained Mrs. Herrick at his Summer home, treated her to a New York motorboat trip, taken her to dinners at several hotels, and whiled away sundry evenings at the Herrick apartments on Hyde Park avenue during Mr. Herrick's absence in Canada. In concluding his address, however, the attorney stated that he would prove that Mr. Waitt had thus befriended Mrs. Herrick simply out of pity for her lonely, destitute plight. He added that he would further prove that Mr. Waitt, at no time, was alone with Mrs. Herrick, and that once the latter had regained the health she failed to possess when his client first met her, the defendant ceased aiding her in every way.

Yesterday's principal witnesses, Mrs. Mary McNamara, a laundress, and Ernest H. Stewart, an employe of the N. E. T. & T. Co., threw some interesting sidelights on what transpired between Mr. Waitt and Mrs. Herrick during the Spring of 1913, while the latter's husband, a civil engineer, was stationed in Toronto.

Mrs. McNamara testified that the first time she met Mr. Waitt, St. Valentine's Day, 1913, the latter informed her that he purposed taking Mrs. Herrick into Boston and buying her a new silk kimono. This conversation occurred in Mrs. Herrick's home, where the witness was employed at the time. Witness further testified that on another occasion Mr. Waitt had remarked to her that Mrs. Herrick "was a fool to live with Mr. Herrick."

344 East 105th St., New York, N. Y.—"A few weeks after I first began to shave I espied pimples on my face. Later they spread all over my face. They bothered me very much. First they came to a head and when they burst they grew larger and larger. They disfigured my face.

"A friend of mine who had the same trouble and had used Cuticura Soap and Ointment advised me to send for a free sample. I did so and used them as directed. I kept on using Cuticura Soap and Ointment which I bought and after a short time I had my face clear." (Signed) Joseph S. Graziano, June 25, 1914.

If they quickly soothe and heal itching burning, skin troubles of infants, children and adults these fragrant, super-creamy emollients are of even more value in preventing such disfigurements by keeping the pores healthy.

'TOODLES' WEEPS AS COUNSEL FOR MANSFIELD SUMS UP

CHRISTENED JOHANNA.

Sullivan dealt at some length with the question of Miss Ryan's age and said she was born on February 3, [illegible] was christened Johanna Elizabeth Ryan, but later took the name of [illegible]. The lawyer went on:

"Mansfield knew, on the first day that he met Miss Ryan that she was a sporty, jolly girl, willing to share [illegible] with him and that she was looking for a good time.

"She worked as a cloak model in New York. Now her vocation is that of an actress. She came to Boston with Eddie Frank. He could tell a whole lot. Why wasn't he here to defend his name and Miss Ryan's honor as well as Charles Butterfly Knoedler, who so modestly admitted he was connected with the largest art gallery in the world."

Referring to a disagreement in the testimony of two witnesses, Sullivan said:

"It is not surprising that people disagree in their testimony. Professor Munsterberg at Harvard raps a bell five times in the class room and asks his pupils to describe it. And all of them disagree.

"There is the testimony of Officer McTurk. Maybe he didn't want to see too much. It is possible that Commissioner O'Meara would turn him down as a policeman for Boston. Maybe he did not see any gaming. Perhaps he didn't want to see it. Nor did he want to see the roulette wheel on the veranda."

ACCUSES HENRY ALLEN.

Sullivan accused Henry Allen of the Ferncroft corporation and a witness of having told "a deliberate lie."

Later the lawyer said:

"Anyone coming into this courtroom and listening to the testimony would say that the case was anything other than a breach of promise case."

Sullivan went on:

"Miss Ryan testified that in 1911 she left Mr. Mansfield for good. When she departed in January, 1911, she said she left all the letters written to her by Mr. Mansfield at the Ferncroft Inn. Do you believe that? She said she left her clothing there also. Do you say she intended to leave for good? Mrs. Hempstone says she did. But, anyway, Miss Ryan comes back to Boston. There was no talk of marriage.

"And then you remember the will that was drawn up on January 5. It was on January 11 that Miss Ryan went to Mrs. Hempstone. Do you think she would leave for good if she was mentioned in a will she described in her testimony? Does she think that because she smiled in an $800 dress that was passed by the customs authorities that she can smile this case through this court?

"Miss Ryan refers to the trips to Bermuda and Monte Carlo. She says Mr. Mansfield was going to marry her after he had made some money on the turn of the whille at Monte Carlo.

DOESN'T RELY ON WHEEL.

"A woman doesn't rely on the turn of the wheel to have a man marry her. Why did Mr. Mansfield have to rely on what he got at Monte Carlo to marry her when Miss Ryan testified he had thousands of dollars before going there.

"Let me take you on a trip to New York in a conversational way. We are standing in the depot in New York. We see Miss Ryan, we hear her laughing and talking. She is with Eddie Frank. And we say: 'There's that Miss Ryan that ran away; I wonder what she can be doing with that young man? Where are they going?' We say: 'I wonder where she's going at this hour of the night. We see them board the train.

"They go to the football game in Boston. They have a celebration at a hotel of a football victory. She testified she drank wine. They were singing and cheering for Yale. She said she sang a song, 'Rah, rah, rah, Yale.' I don't blame the hotel men if they threatened to eject them for singing that rah-rah song.

"She goes to Ferncroft and meets Mansfield. It was an unfortunate meeting for him; it was unfortunate for Suffolk County, which pays the bills for this trial.

"OUT FOR A GOOD TIME."

"We find that eminently respectable people visited the inn, for a good time. They were out for a good time. Can you imagine a girl who had never been kissed, a girl who says she was all right, who would allow a man to pay attentions to her?"

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat also take glass of Salts before eating breakfast.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy, the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water, also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Advertisement.

Stars of the First Magnitude

Patron of the many-sided pleasure—moving pictures—gaze on the firmament that stretches before your vision, and where can you find such scintillating, brilliant stars as these?

Where is there a greater than Sheldon Lewis, master character impersonator? Where is there in all the world, an author like Arthur B. Reeve, who gave us Craig Kennedy, a detective character that will live forever, along with the classics? Where is there a better loved woman than that tender morsel of cherubic delight, Pearl White, heroine of the "Perils of Pauline"? Where on all the stage is there a star of greater poise, power and personality than Arnold Daly,—America's premier actor? Where is there a more fascinating playwright than Charles W. Goddard, author of "Perils of Pauline", "The Ghost Breaker", etc.?

—They each stand out above all.

—Yet they are all together, in that one grand masterpiece, the "EXPLOITS of ELAINE", the story of which runs in every

BANDIT ADMITS HE SHOT CHIEF

The confession which the Hingham police say that Joseph Gaspara of Cohasset made early today of shooting Police Chief Washington I. James of that town Sunday evening is now given for the first time for publication.

Gaspara, according to the police, says he was given a revolver by a man named John and was told to "get him, get him." The "him" referred to was Chief James.

He told the police that he had met all three men now under arrest at Nantasket Beach and said he was drunk when he came to Hingham.

Gaspara told the police that he wanted to throw the revolver away after the shooting, but the man with him wouldn't let him, and he gave it to hif.

Gaspara never varied the story during the three-hour grilling. He said repeatedly that someone had put the revolver in his pocket for spite and put him up to the shooting. He told the police he had a revolver, but it was at his Cohasset home, and the police later found it where he said it was, in a trunk.

When Gaspara was arrested he wore a cap rudely fashioned from the en dof one leg of his trousers. He had slit the leg around with his jackknife, giving him cloth cylinder. Then he had pinned one end of the cylinder together with a wire nail, making a sort of peaked cap.

Harvard Man on Ocean Trip

Miss Florence Caroline Moll of Whitestone, L. I., now Mrs. James L. Knox, who eloped with former noted Harvard athlete.

Although engaged to marry his bride's aunt, James L. Knox, formerly a noted Harvard athlete and coach, on Tuesday of last week eloped with Miss Florence Caroline Moll of Beechhurst, Whitestone, L. I., and is now on his way to Italy with his wife according to an announcement made by Mrs. Frederick Wilkinson Moll, mother of Mrs. Knox.

According to Mrs. Moll, Mr. Knox was engaged to marry her sister, Miss Leonora Edie, of Washington, D. C., and her daughter, Miss Moll, was engaged to be married to another man on January 18 last, but the ceremony was postponed on the plea that the young woman's health was not good.

Mr. Knox, who was graduated at Harvard in [illegible], is a member of the publishing house of D. C. Heath & Co., of Boston and New York. He is forty-two years old and his bride is twenty-one.

Labor Heads for Public Ownership

Public ownership of the street railways of Massachusetts is advocated by organized labor.

The Massachusetts branch of the American Federation of Labor has petitioned the Legislature to [illegible] the question of [illegible] of State ownership.

President Edward [illegible] of the State branch, Ignatius [illegible] of the Boston Building Trades Council and [illegible] legislative agent of the State branch, were among the prominent proponents at the hearing conducted by the Legislative Committee on Street Railways.

Mr. [illegible] declared that the car passengers are now paying interest on loans for equipment that was long ago relegated to the scrapheap. This fact, he said, is responsible for the high price of transportation.

State ownership would [illegible] but these facts should not stagger the Legislature, he said, when it is borne in mind that the investment would be remunerative.

East Boston Girl Reported Missing

Theresa [illegible], sixteen, of No. 371 Sumner street, East Boston, has been missing since Monday. Her parents have asked the police to hunt for her. Theresa wore a brown dress and brown woolen cap, but no coat. She weighs 115 pounds, is five feet five inches tall, has black hair and eyes and a thin, pale face.

Jailed in Morphine Case.

SAYS CABOT HAD SHRIEKING SPELLS

The late Louis Cabot, the Milton clubman, whose $2,000,000 will is being contested in Suffolk Probate Court by one of his daughters, Mrs. Mary C. Briggs, wife of Dr. Vernon L. Briggs, was subject to attacks of nervousness in which he would cry "Boo Hoo Hoo" from a low key up to a high note, according to testimony of Miss [illegible] Speer of [illegible], Cal., formerly a maid in the Cabot home, called to resume the witness stand when trial of the case was resumed today.

The contestant is trying to establish unsound mind in and undue influence upon Mr. Cabot, who cut off the daughters and left all to his grandchildren.

Miss Speer was cross-examined by Sherman L. Whipple, counsel for the contestant. She said that Mrs. Cabot would give "a sort of signal to us when these spells were coming on Mr. Cabot." In answer to other questions Miss Speer continued:

"Mr. Cabot, when these spells came upon him, would say 'Boo Hoo Hoo,' then leave the table, take a chair and throw himself into it and then keep silent for a little while. His sounds were not articulate. They were not like the cry of an animal. He would keep this up a half hour sometimes. They were not exactly like a siren, but somewhat. He would begin in a low key and run up to a high note. He often would knock a glass of water from the table. After leaving the table he would start upstairs. Half-way up he would begin to yell again."

The witness said Mr. Cabot had great regard for the opinion of Mrs. Cabot and was evidently under her influence.

This action by the directors [illegible] the submission to the Public Service Commission in the [illegible] recommendations for the [illegible] of the New Haven road. The railroad [illegible] denounced for its flagrant violation of Massachusetts laws.

The directors [illegible] adopted by a [illegible].

"In the [illegible] many millions of dollars would [illegible] [illegible] in the [illegible] with the greatest safety, efficiency and economy.

"Should the States of Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut grant the request and make the laws that will permit such action [illegible] obtaining new capital from the investing public, the requirements of the laws of those States will be complied with strictly in the issue of new securities so that there may be no doubt about the legality and validity of such new issues.

WILL KEEP THE LAW.

"All new securities will be issued in accordance with the laws now in existence or amended [illegible] proposed, and the policy of the company will be to use the money so obtained by the sale of such securities:

"First, to satisfy its floating debt.

"Third, to advance the minimum amount necessary to companies in which it now has an interest, but which it hopes to sell at some future time.

"And it will be the policy of the company to:

"Fourth, sell its so-called outside properties, securities and real estate not essential to the property, and to use the proceeds in reducing the liabilities of the company or in making needed improvements to its physical property, thus reducing the necessity for new capital.

"Fifth, NOT to acquire any interest in properties and business other than those which are directly and clearly necessary to the transportation companies, which under the laws of the United States, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island, it is allowed to hold and operate.

"Sixth, to attend closely to the business of transportation and to conduct it so as to keep capital requirements to a minimum, and to promote in every reasonable way safety, efficiency and economy, and to furnish good service to the public."

The directors voted to send this statement of their policy to the Public Service Commissions of Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

The directors announce [illegible] desire to hold and operate [illegible] New England Railway [illegible] it is their desire to [illegible] the New England [illegible] Company, and [illegible] of the company [illegible] to conserve its [illegible] so far as it can [illegible] any new properties [illegible] its corporate [illegible] strictly as it was."

[illegible] Public Service [illegible] report on the New [illegible] legislative recommendations [illegible] Haven stock outstanding [illegible] 1914, be validated and [illegible] the floating debt at the [illegible] the same date be funded. [illegible] are also submitting [illegible] the future issue of stocks and bonds by railroad corporations [illegible] a general tightening of the [illegible] for railroad officials who may hereafter violate the railroad laws of the State.

The [illegible] of the New Haven management in the report is very severe. After recounting the Connecticut and Massachusetts [illegible] at some length the commissioners [illegible].

"You might [illegible] the New Haven [illegible] disregarded the laws of this commonwealth [illegible] upon the broad threats [illegible] privileges granted by Connecticut. In defiance, it bought the stock [illegible] securities of other companies [illegible] and without any attempt to secure [illegible] from stockholders; [illegible] its own stock and securities without public [illegible] either here or in Connecticut. [illegible] denied the right of Massachusetts to interfere with this program?"

STATE PARTLY TO BLAME.

[illegible] is charged by the commission with having [illegible] in this matter [illegible] was any attempt made to uphold the authority of the State. That was the year when the Attorney-General brought suit to restrain the New Haven in certain trolley road acquisitions. This led up to the validation report of 1910.

"[illegible] circumstances are extraordinary," the commission continues, "and demand some restatement in line. The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, after defying Massachusetts law for years, now shows signs of penitence and expresses a desire to abide by our laws. In particular the company wishes to have all its stock validated by the Commonwealth and to issue all new stock and securities in the future in conformity with our laws and under the approval of the public service commission, including a contemplated issue of new securities to be used, in part, for funding its outstanding floating debt.

"Unfortunately, some of its stock, even since 1910, have been without authority from Massachusetts, although having under its charter from a neighboring State, and there is serious question now [illegible] considerably be validated [illegible] floating debt be funded if [illegible] of our laws are strictly applied.

Grace Darling at the Fair Writes of Glories of West

Grace Darling, the star in the Hearst-Selig Pictorial News, who writes of her experiences in a trip to the Panama Pacific Exposition for the Hearst papers.

Grace Darling, the charming star of the Hearst-Selig Pictorial News, is in San Francisco today, ready for the opening of the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

One of her first experiences in the great metropolis of the coast was a ride up Mount Tamalpais. Miss Darling rode in the engine cab and handled the throttle. Here is Miss Darling's story of her day in Los Angeles.

By GRACE DARLING.

(Name Registered in U. S. Patent Office.)

In Los Angeles it seems that all my wonderful fancies have come true at once. Blue sea and sky and hundreds upon hundreds of smiling, welcoming faces—that was my first impression of the people who live in the City of the Angels.

There was a big machine to meet us at San Pedro, and we buzzed along the rest of the way to Los Angeles over the most wonderful road. People think in New York that the roads are fine for motoring, but I wish that some of my friends could see the California roads and the California scenery.

It looked like an oil painting of blue-green hills, over which steamy clouds were chased away before shimmering sunlight. Then Los Angeles loomed up in the distance, and white-topped mountains [illegible] the [illegible] tops of houses around which flowers bloomed.

On the way to the city we [illegible] through water up over the [illegible] of the wheels. "But," said a native in the party, "this happens very seldom—not even every rainy season, [illegible]."

At the Los Angeles Examiner office I met the general manager, and then friends took me up to the roof, where I could look out over the city. First I could see the tall buildings, then the grand old wrinkled hills, while above all hung the California golden haze.

It was all very lovely.

I whizzed through the streets, looking at the shops, and then had luncheon at the Alexandria Hotel. As we were waiting for a moment Elinor Glyn and Mr. [illegible] came to say goodby to me. The good-bys are the only things I mind about the whole trip.

AMERICAN WANTS COOKING RECIPES

[illegible] home without a "favorite recipe"? [illegible] particular recipe [illegible] mother has [illegible]. Maybe it's her way of [illegible] or Sally Lun or [illegible] or flapjacks or [illegible].

New England church [illegible] are famous [illegible] out of 100 or [illegible] their "favorite recipe" [illegible] church supper given by the [illegible] sewing circle. [illegible] chocolate cake. It was made by Mrs. [illegible], of course, for "Ma Wiggins" [illegible] for her chocolate cake, [illegible] with frosting that beats [illegible] woman in town.

And there's some of Mrs. Jones's [illegible] salad. She has a recipe for salad dressing that is wonderful!

Wouldn't a collection of these "favorite recipes" be splendid? The Sunday AMERICAN would like to get these famous recipes and then distribute them for the benefit of New England homes.

Will you send in your best recipe or recipes to the AMERICAN? The Home Page Editor would like to print those which would be most popular.

When a number of recipes have been printed they will make a regular collection of New England recipes.

Arrangements will be made whereby every woman whose recipe is printed in the Sunday AMERICAN will receive free a copy of the entire printed collection, so that she will have gathered into convenient form the pet cooking ideas of the expert housewives of our New England territory.

Write your recipe on one side of the paper only. Please put your name and address at the bottom. Mail it to the Home Page Editor, Boston AMERICAN, 80 Summer street, Boston.

Most of our New England housewives know about all there is to know in the cooking line, especially the mothers and grandmothers. Maybe the brides have a bit to learn. Ask "Friend Husband" about that.

But even "Grandma," who can still teach "Mother" a thing or two around the kitchen, may not have heard of some other "Grandma's" special recipes. There's nothing like an exchange of ideas.

And, when all these experts send in their very "ownest" recipes, won't they make a gorgeous collection for everyone?

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—An order impaneling 200 special talesmen for the trial of Harry K. Thaw and five others on charges growing out of Thaw's escape from Matteawan has been issued by Justice Weeks in the Supreme Court. Thaw's trial was definitely set for March 1 instead of February 22.

One Man at Harvard Has Plan for Chapel

There is at least one man at Harvard who attends chapel twice daily who does not believe that chapel should be made compulsory. The Lampoon tells all about him in the following:

"For two years I didn't know that chapel existed. Since then I have been in attendance twice a day, once in the morning and once in the evening. I am the janitor. I think that chapel should not be made compulsory. The best way to foster chapel going is to offer booby prizes to the students who go least in the year. The winners' names could be printed in the Crimson as a special disgrace. The fellow who won first booby for three successive years might be given a pew in the chapel."

Jeweler Died of "Natural Causes"

WORCESTER, Feb. 17.—Medical Examiner Ernest L. Hunt today, after an examination of the body of Edward P. O'Neill, the pawnbroker, found dead on the floor of his office with more than $10,000 worth of watches, jewelry and diamonds scattered around on desks and in the safe, declared that an autopsy was unnecessary as the man died of heart disease. He turned the body over to local undertakers.

John O'Neill, a brother of the dead man, is on his way here from Bristol, Vt., and has wired the undertakers to hold the body until his arrival. Another brother, Dr. James P. O'Neill from Portland, Me., is also on his way to this city.

HAIL SUFFRAGE VICTORY IN RALLY

The woman suffrage victory in the Massachusetts House will be celebrated today at the Algonquin Club. Mrs. Beatrice Forbes-Robertson Hale of New York will speak and Sherman L. Whipple will preside.

The members of the House following their vote of 196 to 33 by which the question of votes for women will go on the ballot in November, were showered with a yellow snow of blossoms in which jonquils predominated. Speaker Cox rapped his gavel for order, but the throwing of jonquils continued spasmodically for several minutes. At a meeting of the jubilant forces on the steps of the State House, a number of the leaders made addresses.

"It is a great victory," Mrs. Theresa Crowley said. "Next year we can attend to other things, but now every woman should direct every energy toward the result of next November. We need a systematic efficient, preserving campaign. Let us now, each one of us consecrate ourselves to the noble efforts of bringing about our final political freedom."

WOMAN SUFFERAGE

Its War Time Aspect.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The women of England are doing their duty. They are taking care of the wounded, or if they cannot assist in work of that kind they are adding their savings to promote the good work. They are knitting and sewing for the soldiers at the front. The suffragists have given so little trouble to the government that it will undoubtedly soften the hearts of those in Parliament, since the "militants" have turned all their energies to aid the fighting men of England, and so suffrage may soon come after this terrible war is over.

Thousands of women in America have overcome their sufferings, and have been cured of womanly ills by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This medicine, though started nearly half a century ago, sells more widely today than any other womanly tonic. It can now be had in tablet form as well as liquid, and every woman who suffers from backache, headache, nervousness, pain at times, should take this "Prescription" of Dr. Pierce.

Many a woman is nervous and irritable, feels dragged down and worn out for no reason that she can think of. In ninety-nine per cent. of these cases it is the womanly organism which requires attention; the weak back, dizzy spells and black circles about the eyes, are only symptoms. Go to the source of trouble and correct the irregularities, the drains on the womanly system and the other symptoms disappear.

Doctor Pierce's Pellets are unequaled as a Liver Pill. Smallest, easiest to take. One tiny, Sugar-coated Pellet a Dose. Cures Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Dizziness, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. 25 cents vial, by druggists.—Advertisement.

SHIP BILL NOW IN HANDS OF SENATE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The United States Senate today became the final arbiter of the fate of the ship purchase bill when the measure, put through the lower body at 1:30 o'clock this morning by a vote of 215 to 121, was sent over to it.

Leaders on both sides declared that the bill either will be awaiting President Wilson's signature by the end of the week or will be laid aside with all hope gone for its passage at this session. The prospects appear to favor the latter as the Republicans were determined to continue their filibuster.

The method of pressing the House bill in the Senate was under discussion when the hour for convening arrived. The leaders were planning to ask for a conference on the Weeks naval mail line bill, which was made a part of the House ship bill, has passed the Senate. This move would deprive the upper House of a chance to amend the bill as it then would come before the Senate as a conference report, not subject to change. Such a course, however, the Democratic leaders recognized, would make it impossible to prevent a Republican filibuster.

In sharp contrast to the strained situation developed in the Senate over this matter, the House made a festival of passage of the bill and had so good a time that Speaker Clark was compelled to suggest that "it was neither a beer garden nor a vaudeville show."

Even the Republican filibuster was not as vindictive as it could have been. Minority Leader Mann demanded only fifteen roll-calls when he could have forced sixty-three and suddenly permitted a vote after the members had prepared to sit through the night.

There were many speeches for and against the bill, but the orators did not appear to treat the situation seriously. Members entered the chamber whenever a quorum call was ordered, but merrily vanished as soon as the roll was completed. The fate of the measure in the House had been decided by caucus and it remained only to vote.

On the final roll-call nineteen Democrats bolted their party and voted against the bill. They were: Bathrick, Ohio; Borcher, Illinois; Callaway, Texas; Dies, Texas; Donohoe, Pennsylvania; Fitzgerald, New York; Gerry, Rhode Island; Gordon, Ohio; Jones, Virginia; Kindel, Colorado; Kitchin, North Carolina; Morrison, Indiana; Moss, Indiana; Page, North Carolina; Saunders, Virginia; Slayden, Texas; Whitacre, Ohio; White, Ohio; Witherspoon, Mississippi.

No Republicans voted for the bill, but five Progressives gave it their support, as follows: Bryan, Washington; Kelly, Pennsylvania; Lafferty, Oregon; MacDonald, Michigan; Murdock, Kansas.

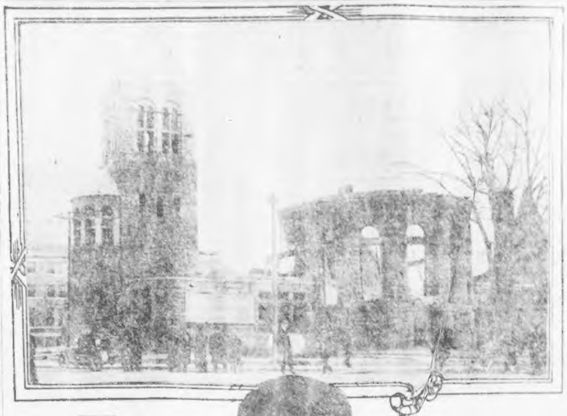
FIRE-SWEPT MALDEN CHURCH; PASTOR MOSS.



MYSTERY IN FIRE IN MALDEN CHURCH

The First Baptist Church in Malden, which was damaged to the extent of $135,000, is the third church edifice burned in that city within four years. It is believed the fire was set. Many believe that a fanatic resides in or near Malden who has a mania to destroy churches.

Others advance the theory that the First Baptist Church, the gift of the late Elisha S. Converse, and one of the most imposing structures in the city, was singled out because of the activity of the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Moss, in the recent purity and liquor campaigns.

Dr. Moss was one of the most aggressive factors in the rounding up of "pony express" offenders and druggists who sold intoxicants illegally. He was asked today if he thought his church had been fired in revenge. He said:

PASTOR IS PUZZLED.

"I hardly think my enemies would go to such extremes, though I have no doubt I have quite a few. I am at a loss so far as the origin of the fire is concerned. In my opinion there could have been but one of two causes, defective wiring or incendiarism. Yet the wiring was renewed recently.

"Does that mean that you favor the incendiarism theory?" Dr. Moss was asked.

"I prefer not to say one way or the other because I do not know whether it was incendiary or due to faulty wiring, but I should imagine defects in wiring would have been revealed.

"There had been no fire in the church furnace since Sunday night. I was in the church as late as 10 o'clock last night with Dr. James Kirtley of Chicago, who is my guest. I switched on the lights in the auditorium to show him the interior. The fire broke out about midnight.

"The original cost of the structure was $125,000, but there have been improvements and the present valuation would double the original figure. We are covered by insurance up to $125,000.

"We are fortunate in having the new Parish House, a three-story brick building which was dedicated Christmas Day. We have been holding motion picture shows in the auditorium of the Parish House, which can accommodate 600. We shall hold services there until plans about rebuilding are perfected.

POLICE INVESTIGATION.

"We have offers from all the other Protestant churches in the city and may have to use one or two of them for our Sabbath School classes, which total 1,500."

The Malden and the State police today began an investigation of the fire. Only the stone walls of the imposing edifice, which stood in Malden square, are left. There was a series of hot air explosions. One fire horse was killed in responding. Albert Rooney, of No. 352 Highland avenue, returning from a dance, discovered the fire. Two alarms were sounded.

The Centre Methodist Church on Pleasant street was burned in February, 1912, and two years before that the Sacred Heart Church on Main street. The Malden Y. M. C. A. was burned in March, 1913, and the Maplewood Congregational Church a week later.

Dog Heroes of the Alps

Garrett P. Serviss Tells of the Wonderful St. Bernards

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

THE dog is an admirable and useful animal [illegible] cities. His whole nature [illegible] him for city life, and under the influence of that life he degenerates. Among the noblest of all dogs in character and appearance are the celebrated St. Bernards, whose history is a remarkable example of what training and environment will do with animals.

The St. Bernard dog takes his name from the old hospice of St. Bernard, which was established nearly a thousand years ago on the summit of the pass bearing the same name, which leads from the valley of the Rhone, at Martigny in Switzerland, over to the Italian side of the Alps. It is the pass over which Napoleon led his army in 1800. It is said to have been in use by the Romans a hundred years before Christ.

The famous hospice, or asylum of refuge, was established by Augustinian monks, led by St. Bernard of Menthon, and it owes its celebrity largely to its dogs. It would not be easy to find another instance of the development of a new and distinctive breed of animals as a part of the daily work of a religious institution. For hundreds of years the monks of St. Bernard have devoted themselves to the service of travelers going over the Alps, and first of all to the aid of unfortunates lost in the snows of the pass. In the performance of this self-imposed duty they early found need of the assistance of dogs and many centuries ago they began to develop the type of dog known to us as the St. Bernard.

The precise time and manner of the origin of the first St. Bernard dogs are not certainly known. It is said by some that the stock came from the Spanish side of Pyrenees. At any rate, it seems to have been demonstrated that the original breed is extinct and that the present strain was developed by the monks from a cross between some mountain dog and a Great Dane. The original type is said to have been kept pure until about the beginning of the nineteenth century.

Fifty or sixty years ago English dog fanciers began to import St. Bernards and they soon produced a type quite different from that found in the Alps. The strong, devoted, hard-working, muscular, long-winded, companion of the benevolent monks, accustomed to find or break a way for his masters to the bed of some strayed traveler lost and perishing in the [illegible], found himself transported to an enervating climate, put in a kennel or upon a bench to be petted and admired [illegible] the attentions of professional or amateur breeders whose only object was to make a useless pet of a very useful animal.

The consequence was that the sort of St. Bernard dog finally produced in England was quite different from his forebears on the snowy mountains. He grew larger, heavier, and less active. His colors and his "points" were developed until, at a show in the St. Bernard Pass, he would be taken by his mountain cousins for a canine curiosity—a kind of [illegible] giant.

And yet amid so many circumstances calculated to destroy his genuine character the English St. Bernard retains the kindly, benevolent expression of [illegible] ancestors and their instinct to perform acts of helpfulness. If these dogs were savage in disposition they would be very dangerous not only to children but to the strongest men. It is quite common for them to measure thirty inches in height at the shoulder, and to weigh 180 pounds. There are instances in which the weight of such dogs reaches 220 pounds.

It is asserted that many of the British St. Bernards are descended from dogs discarded by the monks because they were covered with too heavy coats of hair. Battling in the snow drifts, and struggling with blinding mountain storms on the edges of precipices, or amid yawning crevasses, a dog, like a man, must have full command of his muscles and not be impeded in his motions.

The stories told of the St. Bernards in the Alps are wonderful but not incredible. They will often go alone, or in small packs, in search of lost persons after a great snowstorm. They will seek aid after having found some one in need of help. The monks continually bow to their superior intelligence in finding a way across trackless wastes of new fallen snow. In their work of rescue they show almost human tenderness and sympathy.

"Hello—is this Mr. Vanderhof's residence? Oh, hello Van! How are you? Fine. Did you find you could make it for dinner this evening? Good boy—come right over. I have a surprise for you. No, I can't tell you over the phone. The servants are hanging around." For at this juncture Boggs had come into the room carrying a large bundle of laundry. "Put on your Tux and hurry. Good bye."

"Your—damned laundry," said Boggs, low and distinctly. He took the package in both hands and threw it at Nettleton's head. The paper gave way and a shower of linen fell out. Nettleton sprang up from the telephone chair at the side of the great library table.

"Why—you impertinent—say—look here. Did you know this piece of work is going to cost you just one hundred dollars?" He took from his pocket a small book bound in crimson leather and made a note.

"Yes—I know it—but it's worth it. This is the first moment of actual enjoyment I've had since I came into this house," snickered the sorely tried "butler."

"Then I'll give you another. You may pick up the shirts. A nice way you act after all my thoughtfulness and consideration of you. And do you know what day this is?"

"No. I've lost track of days lately," replied Johns, nimbly skipping from shirt bosom to shirt bosom before he gathered them up and slapped them in a heap on the newly removed sack coat.

"It's the 29th of June. Your birthday."

"Ha! Ha! Many happy returns!" Johns shook his own head enthusiastically.

"Well, here's a little present I brought you. It isn't much, but still"—And speaking in a deep voice of strange vibrations, Nettleton produced the long slender package he had carried with such care.

"A present for me? That's awfully good of you, old chap. Hanged if it isn't."

HE SMASHES THE PICTURE

"Why, no, I'm glad to do it. I only hope it will be a comfort to you."

"It's shaped like a floral offering," and Johns smiled a bit sentimentally as he removed the paper wrappings and disclosed—a feather duster. He gazed at it critically and then at Nettleton with equal critical faculty. "What's the idea?"

Nettleton began to unwrap the other bundle—a large flat one—a pair of sixes and a torn queen. "Two little sixes and a queen—a lucky queen of hearts! Ain't they cute?" Now, then, I'll want you to dust this—carefully—twice a day. Understand?"

Johns groped for his self-control as Nettleton placed that little token of a fall from a lofty estate on the table. "Yes," said he.

"Sir!" snapped master.

"Sir!" gasped man.

"Very well, Boggs. We'll dine this evening—at 7. And I trust you'll do nothing to mortify me before my guests. And, Boggs, you may serve the cocktails—here."

Johns looked after him mutely. Then he turned to the table and studied his birthday present for a moment. [illegible]

"Th—that is thank you, Nellie—you're a brick," he said uneasily.

"No—I'm not. But I am using all my influence with George to make him less exacting. Why T. I can't tell you how I lie awake nights and think that you who used to have our guest room and the best embroidered bedspread are up next door to Coddle."

Johns jumped.

"That's all right, Nellie, I've got to go through with this thing. I'll go through with it if I turn purple like the pills—only they're polka dotted now—Oh, Nellie, you might use your influence about that."

Nellie smiled coquettishly and came closer at the encouraging thought of being able to do something for her good looking and unusual butler.

Again Nettleton to the rescue. From upstairs he called: "Hello, sweetheart; that you?"

Sweetheart pouted a bit and evasively replied: "Yes, darling; I've just this instant come in." Then in an undertone she admonished Johns: "Don't let him see you talking to me—it might affect my influence. Sh-h-h!" For now Mrs. George Nettleton's husband was descending the stairs.

"Well, well! Here you are at last. For the last half hour I've been so worried about you. I've been sitting at the window watching every woman that passed."

Nellie's eyes flared, and Johns, thinking of Coddle's reason for her own presence in the house, experienced a moment of actual enjoyment.

"Every pretty woman that passed," corrected Nettleton.

Mrs. Nettleton withdrew from his embrace and asked sharply, "What?"

"I—I—mean—watching for YOU. You know what I mean. Those other women—merely disappointments."

And he embraced her again—only to remove his arms and their support with disconcerting suddenness and to dash across the room to inspect the pieces of glass and the tell-tale dented picture frame that lay before him. And then out came the little red book and down went a little charge against the account of T. Boggs Johns.

It was not a particularly propitious moment to plead his cause, but Nellie began to beg a bit of leniency in the treatment of their butler, and as her final argument in his cause she produced a telegram and read it aloud.

"'Will arrive this afternoon, six fifteen. Love. Florence.' Don't humiliate him before the girl he wants to win. He won't be able to bear having seen him, George."

"I know all about that telegram," said the master of the establishment. "I wrote to Florence several days ago. Asked her to run down and spend a week with us. Told her you would be delighted."

"With us?" cried Nellie in consternation. "But George, dear—we can't have her here."

"Why not? She's one of your most intimate friends. I thought you would be glad to have her."

THE WIFE MAKES A PLEA

"I would under ordinary circumstances. But don't you see—don't you KNOW that T. is head over heels in love with Florence Cole?"

"Well, what of it? She's a darn pretty and fascinating girl, and she'll bring a little life and fun into the place."

"Oh—George Nettleton. So you ask my friends to visit without consulting me—because your wife bores you!"

"Nellie," he cried, desperately. When Nellie's voice rose, George was always prepared for an attack of hysterics.

"And I won't have poor T. tortured just so you can flirt under my very nose."

"And I won't have you always considering 'poor T.'—that's no way for you to talk about your butler. You are darned anxious to defend him. I don't like it, Nellie—I won't have it, I tell you. I invited her here so she could see T. as a butler—besides it gives Van a chance—and he is a good fellow, Van is."

"And pay five thousand for the privilege. Not much!" smiled George.

"Very well, then. I'll explain."

"Oh, no, you don't. I don't care any more to pay five thousand for you than for me!"

A Man and His Wife

Dennis Tells Isabel He Hopes to See Her Again Soon

"Why are you so dull?" asked Dennis

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER IX.

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

IF Adelaide Simmons did not succeed in making John Hamilton happy, she did at least succeed in interesting him. She knew how to appeal to a man's vanity.

"I don't think you have treated me quite fairly since your marriage," she reproached him while Dennis and Isabel were discussing one of the season's new plays. "I'd hate to think that a man married is a man marred to friendship."

"A married man is not quite as free to come and go as when he is single," John reminded her.

"Why not?" she demanded.

Hamilton looked at her as if her question had almost shocked him.

"There are other claims upon his time, of course," he ventured, hesitatingly. "At least, that seems to be the general impression among conventional men and women."

"Bother the conventions!" Adelaide exclaimed. "They are made for people who can't be trusted to behave themselves! Why should our friendship be any more wrong now than it was when you were a bachelor? Dear boy, don't make the mistake of thinking that matrimony means slavery for either a man or a woman. That's where my trouble began. My husband thought he owned me."

John glanced uneasily across the table, but Isabel was not listening to anyone but Dennis. It was evident, he thought ironically, that she was having just as good a time as if she were single. If she was so jolly and so much at ease with Dennis the first time she met him, might she not be still more unconventional with a man she knew better? Even as a girl, he had never seen her less mindful of appearances.

SHE EXPLAINS HER POSITION TO HIM

"Well?" Mrs. Simmons queried. "Have you nothing to say?"

He started guiltily. "I was thinking of your last remark," he evaded.

"Of what I said about my husband? Well, don't bother to think about that—except to learn wisdom from my mistakes. Had he and I begun on the principle of 'each for himself' perhaps the devil wouldn't have gotten into him as it did. I consulted my husband on all points—dressed as he wished me to dress, wore my hair as he liked me to wear it, had only such friends as he approved of. When at last I awoke to the fact that I, as well as he, had a right to my own pursuits, he kicked over the traces. Had the positions been reversed it would have been the same way.

"A woman does not love a man any better for obeying her every whim any more than my husband loved me better for doing just as he wished. When he found he could no longer rule he won his own way—and a rotten way it was, ending—praise heaven!—in a divorce that left me free. Don't you make a similar mistake in your marriage. Do as you please and let your wife do the same—within reason, of course."

"But a pretty young woman has to be careful," John objected. "It is a man's duty to look out for his wife."

"If she's worth marrying she's able to look out for herself," his companion insisted. "But this is no place to discuss such deep matters," she concluded with a laugh. "Come to see me as often as you wish and we'll continue our argument. Is it a bargain?"

"Yes," he agreed. "I guess you've got the right idea—and I'll be glad to come to see you soon."

There was silence for a minute. The woman, satisfied with the result of her arguments, was wondering why, after all, people ever entered the wedded state. Now that she had her freedom again, she revelled in it. Yet, she remembered, if she had never married she would have been an old maid by now. Surely a widow or a divorcee was more attractive and interesting than a spinster of an uncertain age.

John, on his part, was thinking over what Adelaide had said. She had good sound sense on her side, he decided, so far as her theories about a man's liberty were concerned. With a wife, it was different. A girl like Isabel did not know the world and its evil ways. She was safe in the home, and that was her proper place. But a man was safe anywhere.

DENNIS THINKS THEY ARE VERY SOLEMN

"What solemn looking people you two are!" Dennis exclaimed, looking across at Hamilton and Adelaide. "What are you thinking about?"

"I was just thinking it was about time we were going home," John rejoined with dignity.

At the door of the restaurant Mrs. Simmons affirmed that as she was taking a cab to her home, the young couple were to let her leave them at their apartment.

"You, my escort, can come along, too, of course," she told Dennis. "Then, after you have seen me safe at my destination, you can let the cab take you to your own quarters."

The conversation was general and merry as the quartet drove uptown. When they reached the house in which the Hamiltons lived Mrs. Simmons informed Isabel that she hoped to call on her before long.

"I want to know you better," she added as she bade the young wife good-night.

Dennis sprang out of the cab and helped Isabel alight, while John paused to make his adieus to Adelaide.

"I hope I shall see you again soon," Dennis murmured, bowing over Isabel's hand.

She noticed that John lingered at the door of the cab, and she smiled up into her companion's face when at last her husband turned to her.

"Come, Isabel!" John called brusquely. "It's late!" Then, as they entered the front door together, he remarked: "I should have had a better time if that cad, Dennis, had not been with us. He is not my style at all!"

"I thought the evening perfect in all respects," the wife said perversely, "especially the last part of it."

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" now and then—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver and are constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take one or two every night just to keep right. Try them. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

Fasts 62 Days to End Stomach Ills, and Dies

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 17.—Louis Roth, the Palo Alto tailor whose fast of sixty-two days to cure stomach troubles has been watched with keen interest by scientists, has succumbed to starvation.

On Monday, the sixty-first day of his fast, Roth took a little orange juice and water and appeared to be as normal as a man who had not eaten for two months could be.

Tuesday afternoon the scientists at his bedside noticed a growing pallor and slower pulse. But Roth rallied and up to within a few moments of his passing away, late at night, he was conscious and able to talk with those around him. Roth's weight dropped from 143 to [illegible] pounds.

BELIEVE WORRY DROVE COE AWAY

Business troubles, real or fancied, led to the mysterious disappearance on January [illegible], of Henry Clarke Coe, Jr., the young Standard Oil Company salesman, according to the belief of his relatives, expressed today.

Young Coe told his wife and told associates that he was discouraged over the turn in his business affairs. Coe's father and others close to the family are so positive that Harry fled to the Canadian Northwest that they have abandoned their original theories of robbery and murder and they even doubt suicide. They are confident he is alive.

They now admit that he had often expressed a desire to go to the northwest and that he had even gone to the extent of studying maps and time tables and selecting the most attractive routes.

It is also contended that he carefully planned his departure and that he had his valuable fur coat mended a few days before that he might have it for a colder climate.

Coe is known to have had more than $200 when he left home that Saturday morning at 8:30. Of this $100 was in cash and the balance in checks made payable to him by the Standard Oil Company for salary and expenses.

The Boston Clearing House has been watched in the hope that the [illegible] of these checks might lead to his present whereabouts. Coe had accounts at the American Trust Company and another Boston bank. His relatives and Manager Robert Burns of the Burns Detective Agency today denied that the young man had drawn any of his money before he disappeared.

But it was learned today that Coe carefully changed all his clothing the morning he disappeared and a travelling bag is missing from his home. It was at first suspected that he took a suit case which his wife later told Detective Burns she found, but the other bag has not been located.

Said Detective Burns today:

"Although a travelling bag is missing from the Coe home in Allston we are positive Coe did not take any of his personal effects, not even so much as a tooth brush.

"I am convinced that he wandered away, probably not realizing what he was doing. The officials of the Standard Oil Company have generously turned over all their books and records and careful study shows that Coe's accounts were as straight as a string."

LOOK AT CHILD'S TONGUE IF SICK CROSS, FEVERISH

When constipated or bilious give "California Syrup of Figs."

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently move out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative"; they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt. For sale by Riker-Jaynes and all good druggists.—Advertisement.

HOME RUN BAKER QUITS BASEBALL

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 17.—J. Franklin Baker, hero of three world's series, has quit baseball, according to an announcement made by Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics, at the eleventh annual banquet of the Philadelphia Sporting Writers' Association here.

When Manager Mack was called upon to respond to a toast, he was accorded a wonderful ovation, and as he arose the great multitude sang and cheered and the name of Mack reverberated from one end of the spacious hall to the other. He said:

"Gentlemen, I am going to make an announcement, and it is a very important one. J. Fraklin Baker has quit baseball. He is now out of it for good.

RETIRES TO THE SIMPLE LIFE.

"I have been anticipating this move for the last two seasons, but was greatly depressed to have him decide upon it just at this time. I need Baker, and it goes without question that his place will be hard to fill.

"In order to protect myself and the club I signed Baker to a three-year contract in 1914, but before the home-run hero would sign he had this proviso inserted: 'If at any time I so desire to quit the game, that I can do so and will not be blacklisted.'

"Well, as I had made seven or eight trips down to his home in Maryland, I concluded that that was the best thing I could do, and I then signed him for three years.

"Baker is going to retire to his farms. He is tired of the game and is sincere in his desire to sever connection with baseball."

BAKER'S RECORD IN GAME.

Baker is less than twenty-nine years old and has been a member of the Athletics since 1908. His batting average in that year was .307. He was the hero of both the 1911 and 1913 world's series with the New York Giants.

In 1911 he knocked home runs in two games at critical periods, and in 1913 put the ball over the fence in the opening contest.

Last year his batting average for the season was .326 and he made twelve home runs; but, like the other members of the team, he appeared to be in a slump in the crucial series with the Boston Braves.

More than 400 men were present at the dinner, which was given in honor of "Larry" Lajoie, who returns to the Athletics after an absence of thirteen years; "Wild Bill" Donovan and Pat Moran, the new managers, respectively, of the New York Highlanders and the Philadelphia Nationals.

HAVANA BOXING PROMOTERS ARE INJURING RING SPORT

By JACK CONWAY.

"The fight promoters down in Havana, Cuba, are such boneheads that I am almost tempted to make a resolve to keep away from those cosy little places made famous by mahogany tables and brass rails," said the man with the big diamond horseshoe as he breezed into the Sporting Department this morning. Be it known that our visitor is a real old-timer and has witnessed about every big fight which has been staged since the days when our fellow townsman, John L. Sullivan, was knocking 'em dead with a punch.

He might be called a "nut" or a "crank," but he knows whereof he speaks, and has a habit of smashing right out from the shoulder. His only real bad habit is that of wearing diamonds. This is the reason we refer to him as the man with the big diamond horseshoe.

RAPS HAVANA BOXING PROMOTERS.

"Yes," continued the veteran, as he removed a cigarette from his lower lip, "the blokes who are promoting ring battles in Havana don't know noth'ng 'bout the fight game and should be 'rested for tak'ng money under fase pretenses. They say that old P. T. Barnum was the world's champion gold brick bloke, but he would look like a second-rater alongside of the gents who have charge of fightin' in ole Havana.

"Havana is a swell sporting town, but the boxing promoters cannot expect to bunk the public and get away with it. I am in a position to know what I am speaking about, as I have been kicking around this little world of ours for a long time. I have found out that the man who is not on the square has not a chance to last in any business. That is why I believe they will soon play taps for the fistic leaders in Havana unless they change their way of doin' business.

CITY HAS BIG STADIUM.

"I was telling you what a swell sporting town Havana is when I got away on some of that Billy Sunday stuff, but I will get right back to the biscuits again. There is not anything dead about Havana. They allow horse racing there, and the turf sport has scored with a big bang.

"They introduced boxing into Havana last Saturday. Some rich gent, who probably has more mone' than brains, built a big stadium. It is not quite as classy as the one they have out in Brighton, but it is big enuf to seat 10,000 persons, and that is almost as big a crowd as turns out every time that a Boston fight manager threatens to buy a drink.

"One cannot conduct a boxing club, however, unless he puts on good shows. If you don't believe this statement get in touch with Johnny McGann, Mish Murray, Johnny Money and a few of the other boys who have put on some Class A ring battles in this man's town. The public may turn out to see one poor show, but it won't be there when the chimes ring fo' the second pe'fo'mance. Abe Lincoln hit the bull's eye squa'e when he said that you can't fool all the people all the time.

LEWIS BACK NUMBER.

"This talk was caused by the raw deal handed to the Havana sports last Saturday. The promoters pitted ole Willie Lewis 'gainst "Young" Ahearn. They should have been pinched and put in the stout house fo' tryin' to get away with such a one-sided bout.

"Lewis was a good fighter when I was a young fellow and buyin' regular eighty-five cent candy for my best girl. But that was a long time ago. Willie has been a back number fo' a good many years, but he was able to get a match with Ahearn. They tell me that he received a $2,000 guarantee and expenses for his services, which proves that he still has plenty of nerve. Lewis was in New York when he got the S. O. S. from Havana. He had been hangin' round the big town all Winter, livin' on a beans an' diet, when they whisked him off to Havana and pitted him against Ahearn. Willie is a wise ole boy, and got 'his' before he entered the ring. He also got 'his' in another way after the chimes sounded.

"The spectato's all wore fine duds, but they should have journeyed to the battle grounds in mournin'. They carried Lewis out through the exits after the second session, but he was all smiles when he opened his optics in the dressin' room. I guess it was the easiest coin the ole boy has grabbed off for a long time.

"An army of second and third-rate fighters are now on their way to Havana. They are all anxious to pick up some easy dough. It will be necessary to put a ball and chain on some of our New England box fighters to keep them from makin' the big jump to Havana.

LOCAL BOXERS CAN'T SWIM.

But, as most of them are unable to swim, I guess they will have to spend the Winter in Boston and pass away their time reading Poe and Milton up at the Public Library.

"Well, I think it is about time that I get along, as I got to do a little shoppin' for the ole lady. If I'm not too busy, I'll drop in again tomorrow."

Handy Makes New 100-Yard Record in Brookline Swim

Leo Handy of Brookline, national interscholastic 100 and 220-yard champion of New England at every distance from fifty yards to a half-mile, celebrated his victories at Princeton by smashing the Brookline tank 100 yards records to smithereens when he won the Brookline town championship at that distance.

He covered the distance in the almost unheard-of time for a schoolboy, 58 seconds. The former record of the tank, held by himself, was one minute and one-fifth of a second.

Cutler Signed Up to Wrestle 'Mystery'

Charley Cutler, claimant of the world's catch-as-catch-can wrestling championship, has accepted the terms offered him by Professor George Tuohey to take part in the all-star wrestling carnival scheduled for Thursday, February 25, in Mechanics Building.

The big Chicago wrestler is the second of the stars to sign up, the other being the "Mystery."

Cutler, who has been conducting a series of physical culture demonstrations in the West, is in great shape, and is one of the four men prominently mentioned as possessing championship possibilities.

Cutler recently defeated Pat Connolly, the Irish heavyweight, in decisive fashion in Louisville.

The dispute between the Irish American A. A. A. It was also agreed that the Irish-Americans should permit their star player, Ray Skilton, to be a member of the Arena seven for the balance of the season.

Glover Gets Draw with Karl Herz

SOMERSWORTH, N. H., Feb. 17.—Karl Herz, colored, of Washington, and Johnny Glover of Boston, fought a twelve-round draw in Colonial Hall. Herz was about fifteen pounds heavier.

When Young Gassin of Somersworth sent Young Burke of Cambridge to the floor for the second time in the fourth round of the semi-final, the latter had enough. The preliminary was a four-round draw between Young Dupree of Somersworth and "Doc" Flanagan of Dover.

Hobe Ferris Takes Another Slide

Hobe Ferris of Providence, second baseman of the Boston Americans when that club was winning pennants for Jimmy Collins, has been handed his unconditional release by Peter Noonan, manager of the Wilkesbarre team of the New York State League.

Though Hobe hit well for the Barons last summer, he was slow on his feet and could hardly throw a ball at times.

SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

To the one who picks out the best team in the National League, using the names of players who took part in one or more National League championship games last season, I will give a box (six seats) for any game played by the Braves on home grounds this season—Saturdays and holidays included—the winner may select.

And,

To the one who picks out the best team in the American League, using the names of players who took part in one or more American League championship series last season, I will give a box (six seats) for any game played by the Red Sox on home grounds this season—Saturdays and holidays included—the winner may select.

* * *

Answers will be filed as received and when the contest closes they will be examined. I will ask three or four of the big league managers to help me pick the winners of the contest—that is, I will ask them to name the best team that could be picked in the American and National Leagues, and with these expert selections as a basis the contest will be judged. Of course, if more than one reader picks the same combination, the prize will be awarded to the first received.

Send as many answers as you like, but a coupon must be used in every case.

Thousands and thousands of letters have already been received containing lineups. I didn't know there were so many well informed baseball fans. It is surprising to find how well the teams are picked.

I had no idea the AMERICAN reached so many people. This latest contest has been a revelation to me as regards the circulation of a big newspaper. I now understand the power the AMERICAN wields.

I wish I could answer personally the hundreds of letters that came to me with encouraging words. It is very gratifying to have so many friends and readers. This newspaper game is something new to me and while I may make mistakes I am trying to do my best.

Otto Knabe, manager of the Baltimore Feds, last season asked Chief Johnson, the pitcher, for his terms and received the following telegram:

"Will sign for $10,000 bonus and a reasonable salary."

After recovering the Baltimore leader answered as follows:

"Asked for your terms, not Walter Johnson's."

During a fanning bee at the National League meeting in New York this week, Billy Murray, the former manager of the Phillies, recalled a visit that Roger Connor, the former hard-hitting first baseman, paid to Philadelphia Park a few years ago.

"Roger came down and sat on the bench with the Phillies," said Murray. "He didn't appear to be much interested in the game and growled every time that a player tried to bunt the ball.

"'That's bum stuff,' said Roger.

"'Didn't you sacrifice when you played ball?' one of the young players asked Connor.

"'Sacrifice! Sure!' said Roger. 'I made nineteen sacrifice hits one year, and everyone of them went over the rightfield fence. One of my sacrifice hits cleared Broad street. The ball landed on a train on which Colonel John I. Rogers was riding, and it rode all the way to New York. That was the way I sacrificed.'"

During a lull in the game, Murray remarked to Connor that Joe Mulvey, the Phillies' former third baseman, worked within a couple of squares of the park.

"Is that so?" said Roger. "Your ball game with its lady-like hitting can go to blazes. Me to visit Joe Mulvey."

N. E. LEAGUE SAFE FROM FEDERALS

BALTIMORE, Feb. 17.—President Gilmore of the Federal League, announced today that the proposition to place a minor league in New England has been temporarily abandoned.

He explained that he received a report from his league's New England representative just as he was leaving New York and that on the way to Baltimore he considered it.

At the meeting in New Haven several weeks ago, Gilmore said he told the New England club owners that the Federals would be willing to furnish better players than the people on the proposed circuit were accustomed to seeing and that the league would agree to pay 50 to 60 per cent. of the salaries of these men but that the New England owners would have to finance their own teams.

Since that meeting, Gilmore stated, several New England magnates came to the conclusion that they would be unable to back clubs at this time because of conditions in the financial world. Consequently Gilmore reached the decision to abandon temporarily the plan.

No Chance for Fight Experts to Go Wrong in Picking Winner

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—The McCoy feud, after simmering for a year, came to a climax at the Broadway Sporting Club of Brooklyn, when Al Rudolph, known as "Champion" Al McCoy, the title holder in the middleweight boxing division, met Al Thiel, who recently had his name changed by law to Al McCoy and is now known to boxing fans as "New" Al McCoy.

The champion gained the honors in the majority of the rounds, but "New" Al gave him a hard battle nevertheless.

OLD CITY ARMORY AS BUNDLE DEPOT

The Bundle Day Committee will meet today for the first time and formulate plans for the collection and distribution of clothing donated for the needy. It has been decided that the old City Armory at No. 11 Wareham street in the South End, will be used as the main depot for receiving bundles and disposing of garments.

When the committee meets this morning, Frank Palmer Speare, Director of Education at the Y. M. C. A., will preside. Members of the committee are to gather for conference in Room 15, Tremont Temple building.

"Bundle Day" is one of the most appealing propositions ever known in Boston. There is as much need of clothing as of food among the destitute, and there is an army of men, women and children in Boston now who are in dire need of warm garments. If well-to-do people who never knew what it means to search for work in shoes of which little is left except uppers, and in clothing so scanty that the wind pierces ill nourished bodies to the marrow, they would lose no time in searching their homes for cast off garments of all kind.

A pair of stout but discarded shoes, an old overcoat or any kind of a coat or vest, pants, hats, stockings, underwear and out of style skirts, waists, wraps and, in fact, any kind of apparel may be given to persons who are in want and their burden of poverty will be made lighter.

At the committee meeting today definite plans for the work will be decided upon. Members are men and women representing churches, charitable societies, settlement house, women's clubs and other organizations.

At the old City Armory bundles will be received, opened and sorted. Clothing will not be given out there but delivered at the homes of poor. Every effort will be made to make sure that each garment is given to a worthy person. The distribution will not be made upon application but upon recommendation of established agencies for the relief of want.

All persons who have clothing to give to this cause should wrap it into a stout bundle and hold it ready for a call from the wagon which is to take it to the Wareham street building. Wagons will call upon Bundle Day. If you are going to give a bundle, send a postal card to headquarters, or hang out an American flag on Bundle Day. The stars and stripes will be a signal to the drivers of express and other wagons which will travel streets in all parts of the city.

The date of Bundle Day will be announced in the AMERICAN later, as well as other facts relating to the progress of this great and timely relief movement.

The Terminal Zone Association, an organization to study the transportation problems of all cities and towns within approximately twenty miles of the State House, with a view to the formation of a vast terminal corporation to take over, own and operate all the transportation facilities within that zone, has been formed. George F. Willett of Norwood will head the temporary organization. Other officers are: C. H. Higgins of Arlington, vice president; George F. Joyce of Dedham, treasurer; E. Clarence Hovey, Jr., of Cohasset, secretary.

Fitzgerald Freed of Painters' Charge

Edward A. MOTOR NOTES.

By J. C. KERRISON.

The eight-cylinder King, the lowest-price eight-cylinder car now on the market, was received at the local agency yesterday and immediately attracted general attention. Manager Philip E. Hawley of the local agency was loud in his praise of this new car, which embodies the very latest there is in motor car construction.

The cylinders have a bore of 2⅝ with a five-inch stroke, giving 40-45 horsepower. The motor is of the V-type and is most accessible. A plate bolted at the top of the crank case between the two cylinder blocks gives access to the cam shafts, and the valves are equally accessible.

The car as a whole is an excellent example of the latest creation in the motor world, and will undoubtedly attract as much favorable attention in this city as it did at the New York and Chicago shows.

L. E. Sackett has joined the selling force of the A. T. Hart Company, distributors of the National car throughout New England. Mr. Sackett took up his new duties the first of the week and feels very much at home in this city after a year's absence in the western part of the State.

Harry K. Noyes is enjoying himself in Los Angeles. He will be at Frisco on Saturday in season to participate in the opening ceremonies of the Panama exposition. After thoroughly inspecting the exposition he will start home, coming via Denver and Salt Lake City, arriving in Boston in time to meet his Buick dealers at the Boston Show.

BOSTON & MAINE RAILROAD

Boston, Mass., February 15, 1915.

To the Noteholders of the Boston & Maine Railroad:

The holders of notes due March 2, 1915 are asked to extend the same to September 2, 1915, on the following terms:

(1) ANY HOLDER OF NOTES MAY EXTEND THE PAR AMOUNT THEREOF UNTIL SEPTEMBER 2, 1915, WITH INTEREST DISCOUNTED AT THE RATE OF 6% PER ANNUM, OR

(2) ANY HOLDER OF NOTES MAY EXTEND 60% THEREOF AS ABOVE AND MAY RECEIVE IN EXCHANGE FOR THE REMAINING 35% FIVE-YEAR 5% GOLD NOTES OF MAINE RAILWAYS COMPANIES DUE APRIL 1, 1918, AT PAR FLAT, WITH APRIL 1, 1915, COUPON ATTACHED, OF WHICH FOUR-SEVENTHS (20%) WILL BE CONVERTIBLE, PAR FOR PAR, INTO MAINE CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY CAPITAL STOCK UNTIL OCTOBER 1, 1919, AND THE REMAINING THREE-SEVENTHS (15%) WILL BE NON-CONVERTIBLE. IN CASE OF FRACTIONS, A CERTIFICATE OF OLD COLONY TRUST COMPANY REPRESENTING THE OWNERSHIP OF SUCH FRACTION WILL BE DELIVERED.

The Trustees appointed by decree of the United States Court to represent the Boston Railroad Holding Company's majority stock have caused bills to be presented to the legislatures of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts asking for relief from present onerous conditions that beset the property.

If relief is granted, as we expect, we are hopeful for the future of the property and its securities. The full effect of the passenger and freight rate increases so far granted, the return of business to more normal conditions and the expected friendly attitude of the leased line interests are all likely to aid us in our task.

If the necessary legislative relief is not granted, then a receivership will be necessary with consequent demoralization and loss. We believe the seriousness of the situation is appreciated by the law-making bodies.

The extension of the notes for a period of six months is asked because it is believed that within that time the necessary legislation will be granted, and a consequent plan in the interest of the property be adopted. During this period the conditions of the notes extended will remain unchanged, as no mortgage may be placed upon the property without securing the notes.

The directors recommend to the noteholders the extension of the notes and point out the importance of their co-operation and immediate action.

THE TRUSTEES IN PARTICULAR WISH TO URGE UPON THE NOTEHOLDERS THE ABSOLUTE NECESSITY FOR THE EXTENSION OF THEIR NOTES, IF THE BOSTON & MAINE RAILROAD IS TO BE KEPT OUT OF THE HANDS OF A RECEIVER. THEY ARE GIVING THE BEST OF THEIR TIME AND THOUGHT TO THE WORK OF REHABILITATION, BUT THEY FEAR THEIR EFFORTS WILL BE IN VAIN IF THEY DO NOT RECEIVE THE HEARTIEST CO-OPERATION AND SUPPORT OF ALL CONCERNED.

Circulars giving details of the plan for extension, a statement of the Trustees explaining the existing situation and a statement describing the 5% Gold Notes of the Maine Railways Companies, will be mailed to each note holder and may be had on application at the office of the President, North Station, Boston.

A Master of Ten Languages Begs for Bread in the Street

This Man was Evidently Master of Nothing but Languages, Not Even of Himself

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

In a New Jersey town, a day or two ago, a man was arrested for begging in the street. He had no home and no money.

Taken to the police station, he said that he could read and write ten languages. He appeared to think it was a very hard world which would deny a living to a man so highly educated.

It is very likely that, despite his ability to write and speak so many languages, this man was not educated at all, in the real sense of the word education.

The only possible position for which the ability to speak and write many languages—and that ability alone—could fit a man would be that of interpreter, and in a country where one language is almost universal, very few interpreters are needed.

You might add to this man's accomplishments, and still not add to his usefulness. He might be familiar with all the classics, with the history of the world, with the ancient and modern philosophers, and still be unable to earn his living.

And he might, on the other hand, be barely able to read and write in one language and still prosper—perhaps make a fortune by the application of useful knowledge.

Mere learning is far from wisdom. It does not necessarily indicate ability.

And it is ability that counts in the fight for existence that every human being ought to make.

You can stuff a boy with Latin and Greek in a college—he can take all the prizes for languages and still be a cumberer of the earth when his course is finished.

Unless education is complete, unless it develops the mind in every needful direction, it is not good education.

The best service that any college can do is to awaken a thirst for knowledge, to take a student far enough along this or that path to interest him in following it. After that, if he has intelligence, he can go his own way, and reading and experience will teach him far more than he could learn from any professor.

Education is of tremendous value as a help to ability, and as the beginning of wisdom, which must come to every man according to his earnest desires to possess it.

It must not be mere learning, the mere packing of a human brain with words, or facts, or figures which he is unable to apply later in life to any work that he may be doing.

Many men have won great success with a limited amount of knowledge, but they have been able to use every scrap of that knowledge to the very best advantage.

In a sea fight one ship may have better armament, more ammunition, higher speed than its opponent, but if the opponent can land the first few shots, the superiority of equipment counts for nothing.

Those who climb highest are those who learn to do one thing better than their fellows, who concentrate their minds on one special line of knowledge, not forgetting that an all-around education is helpful even to the specialist.

The doctor, the lawyer, the engineer are helped by being able to speak other languages than their own, and by familiarity with good literature and with history, but they must, to succeed, put their best brains into their professions.

Had this luckless beggar learned a trade, or anything save a lot of languages, it is likely that he would now be earning a good living, for no one without a fairly good mind can master so many tongues.

But his education was not real education, it was half education, and leaves him, in middle age, a beggar.

Learn all you can in this world, but make a supreme effort to do one thing unusually well. College will help you, if you do not let it overwhelm you with mere learning.

If you cannot go to college, do not repine, for you are in a great majority of the human race, a majority which includes many of its most successful men.

But one thing you must do. Do not scatter your efforts over a wide range of subjects you can never master. You can at best learn but little of the combined knowledge of the ages. Learn well what you do learn, and make that learning count in your fight for a living.

A Packed Committee

Half of House Committee on Insurance Are in Insurance Business

The Committee on Insurance has voted against the Governor's recommendation in favor of advertising to the people of the Commonwealth the great advantages of Savings Bank Insurance. By the introduction of this insurance, eight years ago, the people of the Commonwealth have saved about two million dollars a year in the cost of life insurance among the wage-earners, and the people of the nation have saved more than twenty million dollars a year.

Savings Bank Insurance made the life insurance companies reduce their rates and make their policies much more favorable. For thirty years before the introduction of the Savings Bank Insurance by the State, the insurance companies were steadily increasing the charges for industrial insurance to the workingmen, and the policies were becoming constantly less liberal. Immediately after the State provided for Savings Bank Insurance for the working people of the Commonwealth the private insurance companies were obliged to reduce their rates and to give better policies. But even after they REDUCED their rates and improved their policies the Savings Bank Insurance is still one-third cheaper than even the PRESENT rates of the private insurance com-

More Truth Than Poetry

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

Unappreciative

"In Europe, where they appreciate art."—Isadora Duncan.

IN Europe when a soldier sees a work of classic art
He limbers up a howitzer and batters it apart,
And bits of gothic pinnacles go hurtling through the air,
And bas-reliefs are hurled around till art is everywhere.
It's merely his artistic and well-educated way;
Too bad we haven't got it in the U. S. A.

WHEN ancient architecture looms against the smoky sky
The learned European, in his biplane whizzing by,
Drops steel projectiles on it till, with a terrific sound,
It scatters art in various forms for twenty miles around.
He then resumes his travels with a light and happy heart.
Too bad that in America we don't love art!

WHERE vast museums shelter marvels wrought by human hands
The European connoisseur observes and understands,
And blows them with a shell or two to shivered smithereens
Till art is powdered thickly over all adjacent scenes.
What art we have in our dull midst we do not treat that way.
But we don't understand it in the U. S. A.

And Then Some

The slogan "One term is enough" doesn't make any hit when applied to the Mexican Presidency, where one term is altogether too much.

Worth Trying Anyway

Maybe if we let some British tramp take our flag to Mexico we can get that salute!

John Bull's New Song

Our vessels make Germany tremble
When flying the Red, White and Blue!

The Pity of It

Our heart goes out to the poor grand opera singer who has got to struggle along all next season on a paltry thousand dollars a week!

Life's Daily Round

By MRS. FRANK LEARNED

"THINK what you might be doing in the world if you were spared this fussy housekeeping," said a woman to a friend whom she met going out to attend to the commonplace duty of ordering her marketing for the day.

"What should I be doing?" asked the friend gently.

"Oh, I don't know," replied the restless friend, vaguely, "but you might be working for some great cause, doing something better and finer than this dull routine."

"Well," replied the friend, pleasantly, "I think I am working for a cause which may not seem great to some people, but what I am doing is the very best thing that I can do. I can keep house, make a comfortable, happy home for my nearest and dearest ones. My place is just where I am, where others depend on me. I can be of more use in my own sphere, which seems to you so narrow, than I could out in the world."

"But you might save yourself, as I do, by telephoning orders," interrupted the other impatiently.

"No," answered her friend, "I go on the economic principle of seeing things myself. It is a strong bar against wastefulness and makes a difference in the family finances. I am prepared to hear a good deal of railing at my points of view and many accusations of being out of the line of progress, but I hope to go on with my round of daily duties."

The restless woman was now hurrying away, but not without a parting shot that she "detested the 'common round' and was on her way to a committee meeting."

It was interesting to have these scraps of conversation repeated to me by the friend herself who made so simple a stand in the interests of home life, and who thus protested against the consuming and insistent restlessness which possesses many women of the day.

Women who are longing to do great acts, looking for great opportunities, may let life pass without doing the little things which are close at hand and need to be done. Life is made up of infinitesimals. Opportunities for doing great things seldom occur.

Life is not wasted when it is spent in the little, everyday things which help to make it bright for others. The daily round of ordinary duty is not to be despised. Home service may seem obscure, but it is sacred.

In-Shoots

As a rule the real women martyrs of matrimony do not make much noise about it.

The hammer of the knocker is the real boomerang in most cases.

The ordinary cuss gives a guess, while the expert prepares estimates.

Parents Seldom Justified,

Says Dorothy Dix,

In Interfering with Love

Only When Character of Boy or Girl Is Weak or Bad, Should Father or Mother Try to Prevent Marriage—Personal Attraction Must Prevail

By DOROTHY DIX

THE question of how far parents are justified in interfering in their children's matrimonial affairs is one upon which youth and age will never agree.

All mothers and fathers think that their years, their wisdom and experience of life make them the best judges of what sort of women and men their sons and daughters should marry. And in proof of their contention they point out that in the countries where fathers and mothers do arrange their children's marriages there is much less divorce than there is in America, where young folks manage the matter for themselves.

This view of the matter is one in which independent young America will never acquiesce. In this country marriage is not entered into primarily as an establishment for the perpetuation of the family. It is an experiment in individual happiness. We want to pick out our own husbands and wives, and at least have the pleasure and excitement of making our own mistakes.

To my mind there are three cases, and three only, in which parents are justified in interfering in their children's love affairs and breaking off a match if they can. If parents know that a man is immoral, or a drunkard, or lazy and shiftless, they are right to move Heaven and earth to prevent their daughter from marrying him, and thus bringing certain misery upon her own head.

Or if parents know a girl to be careless in morals, of shrewish temper, and extravagant and slovenly, they do no more than their duty in trying to save their son from wrecking his life by marrying her.

In each case it is a matter of the character of the individual to which the parent has a right to object. Nothing else counts, and the father and mother far exceed their privileges when they object to their son or daughter choosing a wife or husband because she or he happens not to be of the same religious faith, or shade of politics, or have the peculiar colored hair that they admire.

Religious bigotry should have no place in this country where people come because it guarantees them freedom to worship God according to the dictates of conscience, yet just now I know of a heart-broken young woman who has been parted from the man she loved because her mother does not believe in "mixed marriages." The young man is all that one could desire in a son-in-law except his faith, which doesn't please the girl's mother—and which is none of the old lady's business.

In such a case a young couple are foolish to let the prejudices of a narrow-minded parent wreck their business. She belongs to the days of religious intolerance and persecution, the rack and thumb-screw, when people thought it pious and pleasing to God to torture other people into their way of thinking. The young people belong to a broader and saner and more tolerant era of human thought, and if each is willing that the other should seek heaven in his or her own way they should refuse to be parted by an old woman's fanaticism. If there's nothing to object to in a man except the church he goes to he is certainly a matrimonial prize that any girl should grab without stopping to argue it out with her mother.

Another stumbling block in the path of true love is the family tree. Fathers and mothers, and particularly mothers, feel that they have a perfect right to break off a match if their son or daughter is going to marry some girl or boy who isn't in their particular little social set. This is ridiculous in democratic America, where every man makes his own place in the world, and is continually changing it, so that unless mother has the gift of prophecy she never knows where the poor boy she keeps her daughter from marrying is going to end.

A bitter old maid of my acquaintance, who ekes out a bare living as a typewriter, often points out to me the name of a Senator of the United States to whom she was engaged when she was a girl, and whom she loves to this day. But her mother broke off the engagement because she didn't consider that a carpenter's son was fit to marry into her august family.

panies. In other words, a workingman can have his life insured in the Savings Bank Insurance for one-third less per week than it costs in the private companies, or he can get for the same weekly payment one-third more insurance.

Few of the workingmen of the Commonwealth realize the great advantage of insuring in the Savings Bank Insurance, and Governor Walsh, loyal as always to the interests of the general public, recommends that the State should not hide from the people the advantages of the system which it has itself established, but should tell the people about it so that they may enjoy its benefits.

Of course, the private insurance companies doing an industrial business are fighting this plan tooth and nail, just as the liability companies opposed the Governor's plan of increasing the payments made to injured workingmen under the Workmen's Compensation Act. Self-preservation is the first law of nature, and we must expect the insurance companies to use all fair means to prevent the extension of the Savings Bank Insurance. But we do not expect the people's representatives in the General Court to help these private companies against the great public interests. Yet an inquiry into the business of the members of the Insurance Committee tells a very sad story. ONE-HALF of the members of the House of Representatives who compose the Committee on Insurance are in the PRIVATE INSURANCE BUSINESS. They are no more fit to serve on that committee than would be a juror or a judge to serve on a law case in which his business was involved.

This is a packed committee, and it illustrates well the necessity for the initiative and referendum. It shows how the corporations control the committees and legislation. It illustrates the character of the present stand-pat Republican machine at the State House. It shows that the Republicans have learned no lesson from their five years of successive, uninterrupted disasters in Massachusetts.

When President Lowell of Harvard appears next week in opposition to the initiative and referendum let him explain the character of this Insurance Committee. Let him tell the public whether or not he considers government by such representatives to be REPRESENTATIVE government; whether government under such conditions as is revealed by the character of this Insurance Committee, which is typical, is a government by the people or for the people.
